SUFFRAGETTES BURN CHURCH AND PLACE BOMB IN BIG HOTEL

St. Catherines, the Parish Church of Hatcham, in the Southeast of London, Is Destroyed by Flames Tuesday

MILITANT ARRESTED WHILE PLACING BOMB

Many American Tourists Were Stopping at Grand Hotel on Trafalgar Square, Which They Intended Dynamiting

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, May 6.—St. Catherines, the parish church of Hatcham, in the southeast of London, was destroyed by fire this morning. The outrage is placed by the police to the account of the militant suffragettes. The edifice was well alight before the fire was discovered and the roof crashed in soon after the arrival of the firemen.

A militant suffragette caught early this morning by the police in the act of placing a bomb at the entrance to the Grand hotel, which is crowded with American tourists, was brought up at Bow street court and remanded for further inquiry. She gave the name of Ada Ward.

The bomb was in the form of a tin canister, to which was attached a lighted fuse. A placard bearing the words "Votes for Women" was wrapped round it.

The Grand hotel is on Trafalgar square.

Miss Nina Boyle and Miss Anna Munro, militant suffragettes who were arrested while attempting to hold a meeting in Hyde park, when brought up at court today, chose fourteen days' imprisonment in preference to the payment of a fine of 15 each.

New Haven Suffragists Expel Their Officers for Politics

(By Associated Press.)

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 6.—Charging that they had formed without the knowedge and consent of the club an organization within it, for "their own selfish motives," the New Haven Political Equality club, a suffrage organization, today expelled twelve of its members, including the president, Mrs. Terrence S. McDermott, and Vice President Mrs. Augustus Troup, one of the first suffragists in the city, and widow of Alexander Troup, who was a close personal friend of Secretary of State Bryan.

The organization referred to had been named the "Pioneer Equality club." The resolution of expulsion declared that "it has never been known in the history of politics, no matter how corrupt the political parties have been in the past, that such low and unfair methods have been adopted by individuals to get control of an organization."

American Suffragists Make Demand on Congress

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 6.—When members of the senate woman's suffrage committee reached their offices today, they discovered awaiting them a formidable resolution demanding that the committee "report immediately" a resolution amending the constitution so as to grant to women the right to vote.

The resolution was adopted at the suffrage mass meeting in New York Saturday. It was brought back by the Washington women who took part in that affair.

While the crusade to get immediate results will be continued, the suffragists, it was made known today, are preparing for a more formidable assault on congress when it reconvenes.

Mrs. Lawrence Lewis, Jr., of Philadelphia, will arrive within a few days to make the preliminary arrangements for the annual convention of the National American Woman Suffrage association next December.

Although the date is somewhat distant, it was declared the early preparations for the gathering were for the purpose of bringing one of the largest gatherings of "advanced women" the country has seen.

A large delegation from here will attend the suffrage parade to be held in Baltimore, May 31. Plans for the delegation were laid today.

Rummage Hint

Prudent housewives find much of interest in The Journal Wants.

With the coming of Spring it is a good time to plan a readjustment of the furnishings of the home and the turning into cash of the disused and obsolete articles that are not needed.

Many find it profitable to conduct a little "rummage sale" through The Journal Want Columns and exchange or sell furniture, floor coverings, stoves, ice-boxes, or scores of other things that they wish to dispose of quickly and profitably.

If ready cash, or another article in exchange, is preferable to something that is part of the furnishing of the home—use The Journal Wants.

HOUSE WILL COMPLETE TARIFF BILL TUESDAY

Administrative and Income Tax Features Alone Remain to Be Disposed Of

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 6.—The administrative and income tax features of the tariff bill remained to be disposed of today when the house convened. Both are important portions of the bill with many pages of details that puzzle new members, but the adoption virtually intact was confidently counted upon by Democratic leaders.

The preferential of 5 per cent upon foreign goods brought in American bottoms, and the strenuous opposition of insurance companies against provisions of the income tax on the ground that policyholders would be ultimately burdened with greater premiums were issues ahead.

All on the Democratic side, while not proposing to bolt the caucus that that bound the majority to the ways and means committee bill were not entirely agreed upon the details of the income tax, though there is no difference of view as to the principle. Those who differ count upon the senate to make some minor changes.

One change to be urged in the senate is to provide that the income tax shall be levied upon the income of the calendar years after 1913, but to apply this year only from the date of the ratification of the constitutional amendment. The idea is to avoid any possible litigation over collection of a tax that would include as a basis the time between January 1, the present proposed basis of the levy and the time of the two-thirds ratification, which was on February 3. Those favoring the change have conferred at the capitol and the White House and expect it to be made, contending that the government can well afford to omit a month this year.

Representative Mondell got permission to offer an amendment providing that all rags imported must be cleaned and sterilized, and then be delivered a diatrbe on "Democratic rags."

The Democrats proposed to admit free of duty," he shouted, "the rags of the world. Rags from the harems of Turkey, rags from the slums of London, rags from the purlieus of Naples and Rome and rags from cholera and bubonic plague camps of the Balkan peninsula will be given to our people free.

"I know of nothing more logical in a Democratic tariff bill than free rags. We must have the rags of all the world to come here to clothe our people, driven from employment by the Democratic tariff rates."

Representative Underwood pointed out that Mr. Mondell's amendment was unnecessary, because the rags were cleaned before being admitted to this country.

As the bill approaches its day for passage in the house, the senate is completing plans for its consideration.

Many Republican senators have drafted amendments. Senator Sherman, of Illinois, has one to provide that the provisions of the income tax shall apply to any insurance company or association which conducts its business solely upon mutual plans and only for the benefit of its policy holders or members.

FREE FLOUR AND LUMBER.

Republicans from the northwest attacked the free wheat and flour provisions of the bill.

Representative Underwood defended free flour, declaring that the northwest would be benefitted. An amendment to the bill was defeated. Efforts to take lumber from the free list and alter the wood pulp and print paper finally were defeated.

The wool paragraph in the free list brought about a defection from the solid front of Democratic ranks. Representative Sharp, of Ohio, representing Democrats opposed to free wool, offered an amendment placing a duty of 20 per cent on raw wool, the rate fixed by the Underwood bill of the last congress.

Representative Sharp defended his Democracy by the statement that he now proposed a rate which both Speaker Clark and Majority Leader Underwood had voted for in the last congress.

Representative Fordney attacked the free wool provisions. Various amendments, including one to place all manufacturers of wool on the free list were defeated.

Senator Newlands and other western senators contending for duties on wool and sugar, appealed to the senate Democrats in caucus today for the adoption of the Newlands legislative program. The Newlands measure was reported by the rules committee yesterday, with recommendations that its various features be reported to appropriate committees. The Nevada senator will seek to have the resolution first adopted by the senate. The caucus took no action, however. Discussion of the caucus centered chiefly on the tariff features of the western senator's recommendations.

MURDERER OF KING GEORGE SLAYS SELF, MAKING DIZZY LEAP

Aleko Schinas, Who Assassinated the King of Greece on March 18, Hurls Himself From a High Window

OFFICIALS DECLARE INTENT WAS SUICIDAL

King's Assassin Was Being Held in the Police Station in the Capital of Greece at the Time of His Leap

(By Associated Press.)

ATHENS, Greece, May 6.—Aleko Schinas, who assassinated King George of Greece, on March 19 at Saloniki, committed suicide this morning by flinging himself out of a window of the police station in that city.

Schinas was a native of the town of Volo, Thessaly. He killed the king by firing point blank into his back while he was walking along the streets of Saloniki accompanied by an aide.

Schinas gave as an explanation of the crime that in 1911 he had applied for assistance at the king's palace and had been driven away.

A few days ago the doctors examined Schinas and announced that he was dying of tuberculosis.

MILLTOWN DEFIANCE OF GAME WARDEN IS ACUTE

"Another Reelfoot Lake Affair," Mr. Mercer Says, Deputy Gives Up

That the situation in Berrien county in reference to the game and fish laws of the state has grown to an acute stage is evidenced by the resignation of Game Warden No. 412, whose commission and badge were received by State Game Warden Jesse E. Mercer Tuesday morning following reports from that section of serious trouble over the rights to fish in a pond of 8,000 acres, known as the Banks estate, at Milltown.

In his letter to Mr. Mercer accompanying the commission and badge, No. 412, the deputy warden writes that it is "too hot down here," for him to hold his office. "The people ordered me to send back my commission," he writes, "and I'm doing it as quick as I can. I cannot hold this job and live."

Despite this indication of dissatisfaction With the warden in question, Mr. Mercer believes that the situation can be handled with the proper tact. Between now and court week, which commences May 19, the warden will make a trip to the scene of the trouble.

WILL MAKE APPEAL.

"I will make an appeal to the good people of the community," said Mr. Mercer, "to uphold the law, and I believe the situation will soon be settled, notwithstanding the intense feeling that appears to exist at present. The people in the Banks estate should be protected by this department, and I will see that they are. The trouble no doubt exists in a class of people who are openly violating the law, which is a good one and one that I intend to uphold at all hazards. They have intimidated the warden, and while there is no one there now to preserve order.

"As I see it, the matter is purely another Reelfoot Lake affair and must be handled through the law abiding citizens of the county. I am not going there merely to appoint another deputy warden, but to explain to them the law as it stands in reference to the rights of land owners, or those leasing the estate. Any clash of that nature is up to the civil courts and not to me. While the territory covered by the body of water is owned by the Banks estate, it is also manifestly evident that there are others who own land under the same water and they are entitled to fish and grant permits to fish there as they see fit."

LAW IN QUESTION.

The law to which Mr. Mercer referred is found in section 7 of the Georgia game and fish laws and reads as follows:

"No person shall hunt or fish upon the lands of another with or without license without first having obtained permission from such land owner."

It is this section that Mr. Mercer points out as fitting the case of Berrien county and which he hopes to intercept to them in its proper meaning.

When seen in reference to the matter, Governor Brown admitted that he had discussed it informally with Game Warden Mercer and said that it was highly probable that the case would be gone more deeply into during the afternoon.

The matter was entirely up to the warden, explained the governor, unless real trouble arose. He added, however, that he hardly expected such would develop. In that case, he continued, no interference would come from him unless asked by the sheriff or a judge for military protection.

She'd Rather Work for Daily Bread Than Live With Man She Doesn't Love

MISS EMILY DOUGLAS.

Sixteen-year-old Florida girl, who ran away from her home, she says, to keep from marrying a man she didn't love. She was taken in tow by the Atlanta police when she arrived here at 5:30 o'clock Tuesday morning.

SIXTEEN-YEAR-OLD LASSIE FLEES FROM PARENTAL ROOF TO DODGE MARRYING MAN SHE DIDN'T LOVE

Little Miss Emily Douglas Says She Wants to Stay in Atlanta and Work Rather Than Go Back to Her Florida Home—She Is Now in Charge of Police Matron

Rather than marry a man she did not love, she declares, sixteen-year-old Miss Emily Douglas ran away from the home of her mother, Mrs. M. H. Douglas, in Daytona, Fla.

She was taken in tow by Officers Anderson and Watson as she stepped from a train at the Atlanta Terminal station at 5:30 o'clock Tuesday morning, and is now in the charge of Matron Bohnefeld, while F. W. Haskell, of Jacksonville, fiance of her sister, is trying to persuade her to return to the shelter of the parental roof.

SHE TELLS HER STORY.

The young lady willingly told her own story to the reporters and officers. Work, she declared, even in a strange town, is infinitely more desirable than life in a place where love would not abide, even though automobiles of every description awaited her beck and call. The would-be fiance, she said, was a Chicago automobile dealer.

"For one of my years I was having too good a time to marry any man," she said, "and especially one for whom I not only did not care for, but could not tolerate. I will never marry this man, with all of his automobiles, and I won't go home, either."

The mother was desirous of the match, it is said, and the daughter revolted. She just couldn't see it that way. She went to Jacksonville to visit her sister. This sister had had her own way. She was engaged to Mr. Haskell, the man of her choice.

WROTE NOTE AND FLED.

The more little Miss Emily thought of it the more determined she became to flee. She wrote her sister a letter and left it on a table in her room where it could be easily seen, the report goes, and packing up her belongings set out alone. The letter said that she was going away, possibly to Chicago. It was a clever ruse, but the sister read between the lines. In an instant she had Mr. Haskell on the phone, beseeching him to follow the child and bring her back. The mother in Daytona was notified and soon telegrams from both were burning the wires in the direction of Atlanta.

THE RACE BEGINS.

Mr. Haskell rushed to the station only to learn that Miss Douglas had left on a train just ten minutes before his arrival. There was a second section of the same train out of Jacksonville in twenty minutes. He boarded it and the race was on.

But the wires of his fiance and the girl's mother and those he sent ahead en route, had accomplished the desired purpose. His train reached the Terminal station half an hour after that of Miss Douglas. She was nowhere to be seen in the vicinity of the shed, and he went at once to police headquarters. There he found the young lady gayly chatting with officers in the station sergeant's office. She was as calm as though she were sitting in her drawing room at home.

They talked it over, little Miss Douglas and her future brother-in-law, and she was just as determined at the conclusion of the interview with him, not to go back and marry that Chicago man as she had been all of the time. "I would rather stay here and work," she vehemently declared.

And to the reporters Mr. Haskell was free to admit that he didn't blame her in the least about that phase of the proposition, but he did want her to return home to her mother and sister.

While ways and means are being arranged for future action and just what to do under the circumstances, Miss Douglas is taking in the sights about the police station, and rather seems to enjoy the novel experience.

It is all so new to her, she says.

CONSENTS TO GO HOME.

After an exchange of telegrams with her mother in Jacksonville, Miss Emily Douglas has consented to return home with Mr. Haskell and the two will in all probability leave Atlanta on a night train.

The young miss still stoutly maintains her ultimatum that she will not marry the Chicago man, and returns to the parental roof only on that condition.

PAUL BOWEN, HELD IN HOUSTON, KNOWN HERE BUT LEFT ATLANTA IN OCTOBER; HASN'T BEEN BACK

Negative Alibi Seems Established for Young Man Held in Texas City as Suspected Murderer of Mary Phagan in Atlanta—Police There Say "Strong Evidence," but Nothing Shows Young Man Was Around Here April 26

BROTHER, IN NEWNAN, SAYS PAUL HAS BEEN IN HOUSTON SIX WEEKS; OUT WEST SINCE OCTOBER

Two Friends, Young Men in Atlanta, Report Recent Letters From Him—Brother Has Had One—So Has Father—Detectives Say Quinn Changed His Story—Newt Lee Declares Murder Must Have Occurred During the Afternoon

A negative alibi established for Paul P. Bowen by several authorities, among whom are his brother and his father in Newnan, seems to clear the young man arrested Monday night in Houston, Tex., from any suspicious connection with the murder of Mary Phagan in Atlanta on the night of April 26.

Strong evidence against the man whom they have arrested and are holding (at request of the Atlanta police) as a suspect, is reported by the police of Houston in telegrams to the Atlanta police. One dispatch says they found a photograph of Mary Phagan in the young man's trunk. Another says they found there, too, a girl's vest, with blood on it. Letters from Atlanta, signed "Mary," and others initialed "M. P.," or "M. J. P.," are described among other finds in the trunk. A woman's shirt, "blood-stained and full of holes," was found in the alley back of the hotel where Bowen had been stopping, just before he moved to the boarding house where the police arrested him. The suspicions of a woman whose room adjoined that of Bowen in the hotel, led the police to him. She saw him manifest emotion over the details of the Mary Phagan murder, the dispatches state, and heard him moan that he wished he hadn't "done it," and that if he had his life to live over he would not make the same mistake, or words to that effect.

LEFT HERE LAST FALL.

Yet there remains the fact that in no wise does The Journal's searching and thorough investigation connect young Bowen with Atlanta or even with Georgia since he left here for Arkansas last October. Nor have the police and detectives found that vital connection. Friends and relatives of Bowen say that he has not been in Georgia so far as they know, since last October. Charley Kimball, of the Southern master mechanic's office at Inman Yards, reports receiving a letter from Bowen, dated at Houston, April 23. The young man's father reports a postal card from him there recently. Paul's brother says he received a letter from Paul about two weeks ago. No one who knows Bowen has seen him in Atlanta or Georgia recently, as far as appears; and he is reported to have been employed for the past six weeks as a secretary, traveling with the general manager of some railroad in Texas, living in Houston.

In short, the Houston end of the story tends to involve young Bowen, uon more or less authority, in the murder.

The Atlanta end of it absolves him of any connection with it.

SEEMS TO HAVE ALIBI.

Either Paul P. Bowen is suspected wrongfully in Houston, Tex., or the man under arrest there has assumed the name of Paul P. Bowen. It is, of course, entirely possible that Paul P. Bowen may have been in Georgia on April 26—but it does not seem probable, and the indications are that his alibi in Houston is as good as established.

The following investigation by The Journal and its correspondents in Houston seems to have revealed very pertinent fact about the life and movements of Paul P. Bowen, who was unknown publicly until Tuesday morning.

STORY OF PAUL BOWEN'S ARREST AS TOLD BY ASSOCIATED PRESS

(By Associated Press.)

HOUSTON, Tex., May 6.—The actions of a man giving his name as Paul P. Bowen, observed by a woman boarder at the hotel where he was stopping, and the story she told the police, caused the arrest here last night. Bowen is held on suspicion, the charge being based on telegrams from the Atlanta, Ga., police, saying that Bowen may be wanted in connection with the murder of Mary Phagan in Atlanta.

From Bowen's trunk the police obtained a woman's vest which they say was blood-stained, copies of Atlanta newspapers and photographs which they identified as that of the murdered girl, Mary Phagan.

The police also found a packet of letters which they are examining this morning.

The woman informant gave her name as Mrs. A. Blanchette. The police say she realizes here and so far as they can learn, she had no previous acquaintance with Bowen.

The police do not know just when Bowen arrived in Houston. On Sunday he registered at the hotel where Mrs. Blanchette stopped and occupied a room adjoining her. She says her attention was attracted by hearing a man sobbing in the adjoining room, and that by standing on a chair she looked through a transom at Bowen while he opened his trunk.

She told the police his actions had aroused her suspicion.

Acting on her information they arrested Bowen.

He was put through a searching questioning by Chief of Police Davison and other officers this forenoon.

They declined to allow any one else to question him, and were reticent about giving out information.

LETTERS SIGNED "MARY."

The police announced later that they would hold Bowen and the contents of his trunk pending the arrival of officers from Atlanta. They said that many of the letters bore Atlanta dates and some of them were signed "Mary," while others bore simply the initials "M. J." There were also found letters, showing apparently business connection with Atlanta firms.

Bowen has given his age as twenty-two. Up to noon today he refused to discuss his arrest. He appeared well educated.

Mrs. Blanchette told the police she heard Bowen talking to himself, saying: "Why did I do it? If I could just live it over again I would not do it."

When the police went to the hotel upon Mrs. Blanchette's "tip," they found Bowen had moved late yesterday afternoon to an apartment house and between midnight and 1 o'clock this morning the officers entered his room. They found him with an open knife in his hand, which was taken from him, and an investigation of his trunk was started. At this, Bowen, the police say, remarked, "If I had my six-shooter with me, you would not touch that trunk, unless you did it over my dead body."

MAKES VIGOROUS DENIAL.

Bowen, a tall, athletic man, said he had been a bookkeeper and stenographer and claimed that he worked in Atlanta, Ga., for the Morrow Transfer company. He gave his home address at 108 Ivy street, that city.

He has worked in several places in Georgia, Arkansas, Louisiana and Texas, he says, but in what trade he would not state.

He denies knowing anything about the pencil factory, any persons connected with or employed in the factory. He said he did not know the Phagan girl. His trunk contained photographs of pictures of young ladies, singly and in groups. Letters from several young women are among his effects.

He positively declined to discuss the blood yvest ,papers ,letters or photographs, maintaining silence when asked about them.

PICTURES OF FIFTY GIRLS FOUND IN SEARCH OF BOWEN'S TRUNK

BY KENNETH TODD.

Formerly reporter on The Atlanta Journal, now its special correspondent in Houston.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

HOUSTON, Tex., May 6.—Paul P. Bowen, a round-faced youth of twenty years, was arrested in Houston by detectives Monday night in connection with the murder of Mary Phagan in Atlanta several days ago.

Information furnished the department by Mrs. A. Blanchett, of Texas City, led to the arrest. Bowen and Mrs. Blanchett occupied adjoining rooms at the St. Jean hotel Sunday night, according to the story she told detectives. She saw young Bowen reading an Atlanta paper and saw him collapse while reading an account of the murder.

Later in the night she heard the young man moaning aloud in his room. She could not sleep, and telephoned the chief of the detectives. Monday evening Bowen took his trunk and suitcase and moved to a boarding house, where he was arrested two hours later.

PICTURES OF FIFTY GIRLS.

An examination of the papers and letters in his trunks showed that he had numerous photographs taken in Atlanta. Also letters mailed to him in Tyler, Tex., from Atlanta. Two pictures show him in the uniform of a national guardsman. It is understood that Bowen's last Atlanta address was 108 Ivy street. In Bowen's trunk were pictures of no less than fifty different girls. He was taken with some of them in surf photo galleries at Savannah. Others show him in the garb of a guardsman and were taken in Savannah, probably during an encampment.

Shortly after the arrest of Bowen de-

BARTLETT DEFENDS FREE COTTON BAGGING AND TIE

Georgian Takes Important Part in Tariff Fight—Secures Concession for Farmers

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—Congressman Charles L. Bartlett successfully defended the free cotton bagging and tie provision of the Underwood bill in the house of representatives yesterday, when it was assaulted by Representative Moore, of Pennsylvania, and other high tariff Republicans.

Leader Underwood called upon Judge Bartlett to defend the section when Moore proposed to amend by restoring the duties of the present law, which amount to approximately 10 cents per bale on cotton. This duty is paid by the farmer, so that Judge Bartlett's successful fight was a direct help to the farmers of the south.

The free bagging and tie provisions of the bill was drafted in the first instance by Judge Bartlett. Leader Underwood adopted as a part of his bill the language of a measure introduced by Judge Bartlett the day congress met. This bill was a copy of a similar measure introduced at the last session by the Georgian.

GUERNSEY OBJECTS TO NAME OF MAINE AVENUE

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 6.—If a grateful government desires to honor a great state like Maine, it must not do so by naming after it a three blocks long avenue in an obscure part of the national capital. This view is taken by Representative Guernsey, of Maine, who has asked congress to instruct the commissioners of the District of Columbia to "strike from the list of avenues" the name of that thoroughfare lying between Third and Sixth streets, southwest, and bearing the name of his state.

"I don't care what they call the avenue," said Mr. Guernsey with some asperity, "but I don't want it called after the great pine tree commonwealth."

If the government does not desire to honor Maine in better fashion, he said, all well and good, but he expressed the belief that the state's name should be given to a thoroughfare that would be an honor to it. Action has been deferred.

(By Associated Press.)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., May 6.—W. J. Fuller, a local attorney, entered the county jail Monday and shot Bernard Tolliver, a negro prisoner, in an endeavor to kill either Morris or Bud Hannon. The Hannon negroes are in jail charged with murdering Fuller's brother-in-law, David Thurman, some days ago. Long latent insanity is the plea advanced in Fuller's defense. He was refused admittance to the jail, but succeeded in getting in during the transfer of an insane patient.

WOMEN AGAIN ASK FLORIDA SUFFRAGE

(By Associated Press.)

TAMPA, Fla., May 6.—Not put down by defeat of their resolution for a constitutional amendment, voted on adversely in the house last week, woman suffragette advocates from all parts of the state, with one or more delegates from the national headquarters, have assembled at Tallahassee to urge upon the senate the passage of a resolution allowing the voters of the state to pass upon the matter at the 1914 elections.

The cause of woman suffrage in Florida would seem to be at a low ebb if the house vote may be taken as a criterion.

Thomas Is Denied Entrance to Senate After His Hair-Cut

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 6.—As Samson found his strength gone after Delilah clipped his locks, so Senator Thomas, of Colorado, found his official identity lost after paying a visit to a barber shop in the capitol. He even was spurned by the senate doorkeepers. The story vouched for by certain of his colleagues, leaked out today.

Senator Thomas long has gloried in a waving mane. But when the sizzling heat of an unusually hot spring day settled on Washington it ceased to be a source of gratification, or glory. The senator stood the discomfort as long as he could, and decided to be shorn.

"Back," said a portly doortender when Senator Thomas sought to enter to the floor of the senate.

"You can't get in here."

"But I'm Senator Thomas," protested the applicant.

"Nothin' doin'," retorted the doorkeeper, looking at the supposed intruder's apparently bald head. "You'll find the elevators to the public galleries down the corridor to your right."

The senator was rescued by a colleague, who disclosed his identity to the embarrassed doorkeeper.

PHILIPPINE COMMISSION ENRAGED AT WORCESTER

Manuel Quezon, Gov. Forbes and Commissioner Earnshaw Deny Slavery Charge

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 6.—"The conduct of Secretary Worcester is a new event that prompt action should be taken to relieve every one of the members of the Philippine commission from the governor general down," wrote Manuel Quezon, resident commissioner of the Philippines, in a protest filed today with Secretary Garrison against Mr. Worcester's statement that slavery exists i nthe island. Resident Commissioner Quezon, of the Philippines, joined in the statement.

Mr. Quezon's letter says that if slavery exists in the Philippines, the Philippine commission alone is responsible for the lack of proper legislation, "to punish this inhuman savage crime," and adds:

"Not until recently has this question of slavery been brought up, and always for the purpose of telling the American people that the Philippine assembly, as representing the capacity of the Filipinos for self-government, is a failure."

Governor Forbes also gave out a statement similar to Mr. Worcester's.

"Whether or not as a matter of policy in the present incumbents of the commission should be relieved, Secretary Worcester certainly has done enough not only in this case, but in previous ones, to merit the loss of privilege of being one of the administrators and legislators of a people whom he finds pleasure in slandering."

ITALY LOSES TO FRANCE BEFORE HAGUE TRIBUNAL

For Seizing French Ships During Turco-Italian War, Italy Must Pay $32,800

(By Associated Press.)

THE HAGUE, May 6.—The Franco-Italian court of arbitration dealing with the seizure by Italian warships during the Turco-Italian war of the French steamers Carthage and Manouba, decided today that Italy was in the wrong, and condemned the Italian government to pay 532,000 and $800 in the respective cases.

The Carthage was seized on January 16, 1912, on suspicion that she had contraband goods on board. She was released two days later on the request of the French government.

The Manouba was seized January 15, 1912, while she was carrying a Turkish medical mission. She was allowed to proceed after landing her Turkish passengers.

TABLET TO MEMORY OF FIRST AVIATOR UNVEILED

Scientists Honor Name of Prof. Samuel Langley, Who Was Laughed at 17 Years Ago

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 6.—Seventeen years ago today the first heavier-than-air flying machine took wings from a secluded spot on the Potomac, and, after a short flight, fell to destruction, while the inventor, Prof. Samuel Langley, looked on and the world laughed. Not long afterward he died of a broken heart, many of his friends say, from ridicule heaped upon him because he thought he could invent a "flying machine."

But at the Smithsonian institute a group of scientists, whose names are known to the world, gathered to unveil a tablet to his memory as the father of advanced aviation, and to present medals to Glenn Curtis and Gustave Eiffel, who have carried on the work Langley left off.

Curtis was present, but Ambassador Jusserand received the medal for Eiffel. Later, at the army war college, an exhibition of flying boats was given. Army and navy officers carrying on the development of aviation were present, and many of the notabes of Washington life came to pay homage to the memory of Langley.

JUDGE WRIGHT'S RULING MAY CRIMP LOCKERS

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

ROME, Ga., May 6.—Startling and novel interpretation was given to the prohibition law yesterday afternoon in a special charge to the grand jury by Judge Moses Wright, who declared that in his opinion it was illegal for a manager of a locker club to order liquor for members, or for a friend to order for friends, employer for employe, etc.

Judge Wright further declared that it was illegal to operate locker clubs in such a manner that a charge for service and other methods were made to pay the salary or wages of manager or employe.

Prohibitionists here are jubilant over the stand taken by the judge, holding that it means the death knell of two locker clubs in Rome and all throughout the state also, if Judge Wright's ruling is upheld by higher courts.

Georgia Seniors Bar Alcoholics At Class Banquets

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

ATHENS, Ga., May 6.—The senior class of the University of Georgia set an example Monday morning to all other classes at the institution that is highly indicative of the new college spirit that has come over the school within the past few years. The boys voted unanimously to abolish the use of alcoholics of any sort at the annual class banquet, whereas a decade ago spirits were considered essential to the conviviality of such gatherings.

The question of "wet" or "dry" banquets has gradually become a source of great agitation at the university, with the "dries" gradually gaining the ascendency, until the sentiment of the school reached its climax in the unanimous vote Monday morning.

The authorities of the school express themselves as overjoyed at the occurrence.

NEWSPAPER SUBSTITUTED FOR $14,300 IN CURRENCY

143 Notes for $100 Each Taken From Express Package on Way to Coast

(By Associated Press.)

OAKLAND, Cal., May 6.—The theft of 143 $100 bills, $14,300 from an express package sent from Washington, D. C., to the Central National bank of this city is engaging the efforts of a number of special agents.

When the package reached the bank here it was found to contain merely clipped magazine pages of the size and weight of the missing bank notes.

The bank notes were addressed to the Oakland bank from the National Bank redemption office. Government officials have notified the bank that the package was properly sealed and stamped before it was turned over to the United States Express company.

Officials of the express company have assured the bank that the package could not have been tampered with before it reached Denver and the representatives of the Wells-Fargo company which is said to have relayed the package from Denver, has given the same assurance to the bank.

Somewhere a counterfeit government seal was used.

GARAGE FOR CITY AUTOS TO ABOLISH JOY RIDES

Also, Believes Councilman Humphrey, It Will Effect Big Saving in Upkeep

A garage where all the city's automobiles shall be stored and repaired, and where the city hall store its gasoline, spare parts, etc., is favored by Councilman W. G. Humphrey, the chairman of the finance committee of general council.

Chairman Humphrey believes such a garage would save the city the cost of at least two automobiles every year, and save a large amount in gasoline, repair and tire bills.

That the general council appreciates the necessity for a city garage is evidenced by the passage of a resolution, at the session of council Monday afternoon, which creates a special committee to take up the matter. The committee is to consist of the chairman of the finance, police, streets and waterworks committees.

"If the city had a garage, and required all city automobiles to be in the garage by 7 o'clock at night, there would be a big saving in the upkeep bills," says Chairman Humphrey. "The painting of the city's name on the hoods of the city's cars already has had the effect of discouraging joy rides at the city's expense, and a city garage would do the balance."

Chairman Humphrey believes a garage could be build for not over $3,000, and pay for itself in a year. He is of the opinion that there is room on the police station lot for the building.

A man living at Auburn, New York, had a severe attack of kidney and bladder trouble. Being a working man, not wanting to lose time, nor run up a heavy doctor's bill, he cured himself completely by using Foley Kidney Pills. A year later he says: "It is a pleasure to report that the cure was permanent." He has had no return whatever of the pain, backache and burning. His name is J. A. Farmer, and he says: "Of course I recommend Foley Kidneys Pills as a very effective cure for kidney and bladder trouble." For sale by all dealers.—(Advt.)

The trustees som etime back had fulfilled the original agreement with Mr. Hawkes, which was to raise a subscription of $16,000, by a given time with which to erect the first building.

TO REPORT HOMES FOR PRESBYTERIAN GUESTS

Final Meeting of Ladies' Committee Thursday Will Complete Hospitality List

Thursday afternoon the final reports will be made in the matter of securing home entertainment for the visiting Presbyterian commissioners who are coming to the assemblies in Atlanta this month.

On that afternoon at 1 o'clock in the Capital City club the ladies' committees will gather as the guests of J. K. Orr and render their complete tally upon their several denominations.

"We expect to have 100 more Presbyterians and 100 of other denominations to report then that they can take care of 200 commissioners," said J. K. Orr, general chairman, Tuesday morning.

Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday morning were expected to be busy times for the very active committees of ladies who have been making canvasses of their respective denominations to find homes for the commissioners.

"We don't want anybody to wait for the committees to call upon them," said Mr. Orr Tuesday. "They can telephone to general headquarters at Main 3736 or they can telephone to me at my office, and have their invitation listed."

Old Gate City Guard Will Give Mrs. Wilson Roses from Home Town

A huge bouquet of red roses, picked from the lawn where Mrs. Woodrow Wilson lived as a girl at Rome, Ga., will be carried to Washington and presented to the president's wife on May 29 by the Old Guard of the Gate City Guard.

Mrs. Wilson was a Georgia girl, the daughter of Rev. Mr. Axson, a beloved and well-known Presbyterian minister. She spent a great part of her girlhood at Rome and in the vicinity of that town, and know personally some of the members of the Old Guard as it was reorganized after the war.

The Old Guard is going north to visit Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, Boston and other points to renew the friendships that were made at the time of the historic Mission of Peace in 1879. While in Washington the organization will call on President and Mrs. Wilson at the White House, and the presentation of the flowers will be made at that time.

In Washington, as in the other cities which the Guard will visit, they will be elaborately welcomed and entertained. They will leave Atlanta Monday morning, arriving in Washington Tuesday morning. They will spend the entire day Tuesday in the capital city, remaining there Tuesday night and starting Wednesday morning for Baltimore.

According to present plans, about a dozen Georgia women, wives and daughters of the members of the Old Guard, will accompany them on the trip north. Between firty and sixty members of the Old Guard have already signified their intention of going. They will travel by special train, coming back by water via Savannah.

Shopping Made Easy

There isn't much excuse nowadays for the woman or man who is "bored to death" by shopping.

Atlanta merchants no longer just "keep shop." They are live, progressive, alert, and energetic. There's high-powered efficiency on tap at most of the shops, large and small. Everything conceivable is being done for the information, convenience, and comfort of patrons. And it is the patron's own fault if he or she doesn't know where the choicest things may be purchased, where the best service is to be had, and where prices are the most reasonable.

Just read over carefully the crisp, instructive, up-to-the-minute announcements of every description contained in today's Journal and you will readily understand how simple it is to find out where to shop and what to buy.

EXHAUSTION CAUSED DEATH OF CAPT. SCOTT

Lieutenant Gran, Visiting in Winnipeg, Tells of Finding Bodies

(By Associated Press.)

WINNIPEG, Man., May 6.—Exhaustion and not starvation was the undoing of Captain Scott and the men who died with him on their way back from the South Pole, according to Lieutenant Gran, a member of the party which found the bodies.

"The end of the party apparently was peaceful," declared Gran, here today.

"Lieutenant Wright, of Toronto, who commanded our party, went into the the explorers' tent first. Captain Scott lay on his back as if asleep, but outside of his sleeping bag. Dr. Wilson and Lieutenant Bowers were in their sleeping bags. Apparently they had been carefully wrapped by Captain Scott, who evidently was the last to die.

FROM TENEMENT TO GRAND OPERA

MARIE CAVAN.

Once a stenographer at five a week; now rides around the country in a special train; has a maid and a secretary and occupies expensive suites in expensive hotels, all because she got an awful pile of money, just for singing.

Marie Cavan was born in a tenement on the East Side of New York City.

Marie's first utterance was a not unmusical wail. A Neapolitan's hurdy gurdy was wheezing in the street seven stories below, and his simian partner in discord was climbing the fire escape in quest of pennies.

Marie's wail, so goes the story, was timed to coincide with the last despairing gasp of the hurdy gurdy as is finished the chorus of "Down Went McGinty!" And Marie's proud and happy father declared, with a twinkle in his eye, that he distinctly heard the newborn utter the last line of the verse:

"Dressed in his best suit of clothes!"

Be that as it may, if any one had suggested to Marie's father, mother, sisters and brothers that she would one day be a great prima donna, they would have greeted the suggestion with loud guffaws of mirthful unbelief.

"At an early age," records the official biographer, "Miss Cavan entered upon a business career."

That's the biographer's way of saying that she got a job in a broker's office as a stenog. Her pay was $5 a week, and she carried her lunch in a phony music roll. She did not, however, chew gum.

She had never heard any good music. She had heard the rumbling crash and roar of the elevated trains. She heard the wheezing, gasping hurdy gurdies. She heard squalling babies, peevish women, angry men, wheels on cobblestones, clicking typewriters, the curt voice of her bald-headed employer giving dictation, but she never heard any good music.

Up to this point the story is commonplace.

Then came the turning point in her life. She visited the opera for the first time in her life.

It cost her a lot of money to see the opera. She went on short rations for a week to accomplish it. The gallery seat cost one large dollar. It was "Tannhauser"—big, booming "Tannhauser!"

Then one evening she announced to the assembled Cavans: "I am going to take singing lessons."

If you can imagine how you would feel if your own daughter were to announce casually: "I'm going to join the harem of the sultan of Zanzibar," or "I'm going to buy a balloon and go to the moon," you have some idea of how Father and Mother Cavan and all the little Cavans felt when Marie said she was going to take singing lessons.

She did, too. By and by Marie gave a recital. A bunch of swagger folks were there. Marie nearly died with fright, but she didn't show it, and she sang marvelously. And she made a small chunk of money, enough, maybe, to—Go abroad!

She went. She made that small chunk of money go a long way. And the Cavans at home, having recovered from their astonishment, had faith, and they helped all they could. And by pinching and scrimping and struggling, the musical education was completed.

Then Dippel heard her sing in Germany three years ago, and he beamed all over his face. And Mary Garden heard her sing, and she kissed the exstenog. And Dippel prepared a document, full of legal phrases, which he signed; then Marie signed it.

Now she rides around in a special train, and has a maid, and a secretary of her own, and occupies luxurious suites in expensive hotels, and she gets an awful pile of money, just for singing.

ARE RHEUMATIC SUFFERERS NEGLIGENT?

Many Suffer Excruciating Agony for Years Without Investigating the Cause of Their Pain or Its Cure.

Rheumatism frequently comes from uric acid poisoning. Uric acid accumulates from undigested food remaining in stomach and intestines, which ferments and putrefies and generates this poisonous acid. If not expelled promptly it gets into the blood, and finally forms crystalline deposits which settle in joints and muscles and stiffen them.

JACOBS' LIVER SALT has been remarkably successful in the treatment of rheumatism resulting from uric acid poisoning. It is a true uric acid solvent which will break up the deposits already formed, dissolve the uric acid out of the tissues and hold it in solution until expelled in the urine. It will not cure your rheumatism overnight; neither did your rheumatism come overnight. But JACOBS' LIVER SALT will relieve you more promptly and surely than anything else because it thoroughly purges the system of fermenting waste, eliminates the poisonous uric acid and purifies the blood.

Almost without exception the sufferer from rheumatism is subject to constipation, biliousness or dyspepsia, and a sluggish liver is at the bottom of the whole trouble. JACOBS' LIVER SALT stimulates both liver and kidneys and makes them keep your system clean. No other liver medicine has the same solvent action upon uric acid, therefore insist that your druggist give you the genuine JACOBS' LIVER SALT. If he hasn't it, full size jar sent upon receipt of price, 25c, postage free. Made and guaranteed by Jacobs' Pharmacy Co., Atlanta.—(Advt.)

COLQUITT CO. SCHOOLS BREAK FORMER RECORDS

Moultrie Children Had Exceptionally Good Winter for Studies—Many Attended

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

MOULTRIE, Ga., May 6.—County School Commissioner Lee S. Dismuke, who has been making the rounds of the county, attending the closing exercises of many county schools, is very enthusiastic in discussing the school situation in Colquitt, he schools he finds will round out the most successful terms of their history.

The weather has been good, and the attendance will break all records. About sixty of these schools close this month, and there is evidences of life and progress in all of them. Many new school houses have been built the past year and a number of school districts have joined in the special tax movement for school support. A movement is now on foot to hold a county electin to vte n school tax, it being the opinion of many that the county is now ready to vote favorably on the issue.

J. L. Kinard, many years a citizen of this county, a successful farmer and popular churchman, died at a sanitarium in Atlnta Sunday, and his remains were laid to rest in the Moultrie cemetery today. The funeral occurred at the First Baptist church at 10 o'clock, Rev. A. M. Bennett, of Norman Park, conducting the funeral services. Mr. Kinard was about fifty-five years old.

J. H. Mather, representative of the anti-saloon league of Georgia, addressed a mass meeting at the Bptist church Sunday fternoon, on "Our Fence." He outlined the work of the Anti-Saloon league, and made the statement that the organization would be active in presenting legislation at the coming session of the legislature.

Mrs. S. R. Woods, passed away at Kingwood, early Sunday morning. Her funeral occurred Sunday evening at Pleasant Grove church.

Oat cutting began in Colquitt county today. It is the early variety of oats that is now maturing and ready for the reapers, but good many early oats were sown this year, owing to the fact that there was such a shortage in the feed crops. And those who have sown the early varieties have made the best oats. The fall oats have suffered from rust, nd they are now suffering for lack of moisture. The early varieties escaped the rust and they matured ahead of the drouth.

Leo H. Browning, of Cochran, Ga., has been elected superintendent of the public schools of Moultrie, and he has accepted. Prof. Browning takes rank with leading educators of the state and the local school board feels that a streak of good fortune was struke in securing him. Superintendent George P. Godard, who has raised the Moultrie schools to a high standard, was not an applient for re-election.

J. R. Bass, a grocer of Doerun, is in bankruptcy. He has scheduled his assets at $2,170 and his liabilities at $2,685.

(By Associated Press.)

Rasmussen left Copenhagen in July, 1910. His object was to trace the migratio nof the Greenland Eskimos from the northern shores of the American continent and to ascertain their origin. It was also his intention to try to find Crooker's island which was seen by Peary and he aimed to make an exploration over the inland ice.

WHITE MAN KNOCKED DOWN BY AUTOMOBILE

An elderly white man who gave his name to the police as J. R. Russell, was struck by an automobile driven by E. N. Beirne, 314 Empire building, at the corner of Forsyth and Marietta streets, at 1:20 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The injured man was picked up by the owner of the car, assisted by several of his friends who were with him at the time, and taken to a nearby drug store until the ready hospital ambulance could be summoned. It is not believed he is seriously injured.

Druggist Saves Life By Selling Quinine Instead of Cocaine

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

MACON, Ga., May 6.—After swallowing what he thought was cocaine tablets but in reality were only quinine tablets, W. D. Hooks, a Macon city fireman, sent for Rev. C. B. Curry, of the East Macon Presbyterian church, to pray for him as he slowly passed away.

When the news spread to neighbors in East Macon, where Hooks resided, that he had taken cocaine to kill himself, the druggist from whom he secured the tablets declared that he entered the store and called for cocaine, but he sold him quinine tablets instead, and that the three tablets he had taken would never produce death.

Hooks declared that he had taken the tablets he had purchased at the drug store and thought they were cocaine. It is stated that Hooks was very despondent when the minister and neighbors rushed to his room, but when informed that he had taken quinine, he quickly ordered his room cleared.

RESOLUTION ASKS HOUSE TO TEST ANTI-JAP BILL

Congressman Britten, of Illinois, Asks House to Test California Law in Courts

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 6.—The California anti-alien land bill and its effect upon the Japanese were not discussed by President Wilson with his cabinet today but some attention was given to Mexican problems.

The president took up prospective appointments in various states, but no announcement was made as to selections. The question of Saturday half holidays for government employes in Washington also was discussed but no conclusion was reached.

A test of the constitutionality of the California land bill in the courts is proposed in a resolution introduced in the house today by Representative Britten of Illinois. The resolution provides that the judiciary committee draw a resolution directing the department of state and the attorney general to "take such steps as are necessary toward a judicial test of the California law with a view to its annulment."

In a statement accompanying his resolution Representative Britten attacked the Democratic administration for its attitude toward the British government in the Panama canal tolls controversy and toward Japan in the California inbroglio.

Japanese Emperor Takes Great Interest in Affair

SAN FRANCISCO, May 6.—Tokio dispatches to the New World, a Japanese morning newspaper, state that the emperor is taking a personal interest in the anti-alien land legislation in California and granted an audience yesterday to Baron K. Kaneko, who headed the commission appointed to select a site for the Japanese building at the Panama-Pacific exposition at San Francisco. The correspondent says the emperor desired first hand information as to the feeling in California.

MRS. WILSON TAKES INTEREST IN SEWING

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 6.—A good, old-fashioned sewing "bee," although without evidences of needles and thread, was got under way today with the meeting of the local section of the Needlework Guild of America. Mrs. Wilson, wife of the president; Mrs. Oscar Underwood, wife of the majority leader of the house, and a number of other women prominent in congressional and diplomatic circles had announced their intentions to be present.

The work done by the guild in furnishing clothing for the sufferers from the recent floods in the middle west was the topic for discussion.

Mrs. George Goodhue, president of the Dayton, Ohio, section of the organization, was present to tell of her personal experiences in the flooded district. Mrs. George G. Shaw had prepared a number of views of the flooded districts which were exhibited by steroptican.

Mrs. Wilson is honorary president of the national organization, while Mrs. Truman H. Newberry, wife of the former secretary of the navy, is its vice president. The national organization, it was announced today, distributed 600,000 articles of clothing among the poor last year.

THIRD DAY OF GREAT HORSE SHOW BEGINS

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 6.—With an unusually attractive list of events the third day of the National Horse show opened auspiciously today. As has been the case on the two previous days, the contestants for honors were out early with their mounts, grooming them for the struggle of supremacy and the honor of wearing the coveted blue ribbons.

The weather promised to be perfect. A unique feature of the program will be the appearance late in the afternoon of several army aviators, who will drop souvenirs into the throngs, as their machines sail over the assemblage of horse lovers. One of the aviators, it was said, would drop a huge bunch of flowers intended for Colonel Robert M. Thompson, president of the Horse Show association. President and Mrs. Wilson were expected to be present today and the presidential box early was made ready to receive the White House party. The president intended to join the throngs yesterday, but was forced to abandon his plan because of public business.

"SAME OLD SONGS" CAUSE BOYS' STRIKE

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, May 6.—Wearied of the "same old songs" in the morning and the "same old grub" at noontime, the 3,000 pupils of the Stuyvesant High school are agitated by a strike movement. It began when 1,200 boys assembled in the auditorium yesterday and refused to sing "hymn 266." Not a voice was raised when the principal announced "we will now sing 'America,'" the patriotic instinct of scores of boys was so aroused that they sang lustily, although a majority of the students still kept their lips shut tight.

"We weren't going to throw down 'America,'" the strike-breaking patriots explained.

Balking at the food served in the school lunch room and demanding permission to buy their lunches outside, the lads also started a hunger strike, but this has not proved so popular.

WILL PROVIDES FOR WEIGHING OF FORTUNE

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, May 6.—Louis Ash, a cigar manufacturer, who died recently, provided in his will that if his daughters could not agree on the equal division of his library the books should be weighed and thus equally apportioned.

The odd provision is one cited by Mrs. Amanda Chase, who, declaring that her father was not of sound mind, is contesting a codicil to the will which gives $35,000 to Mrs. Nathanie May, another daughter, cutting off Mrs. Chase.

Diamond Prices Advancing; Buy Now and Save From $10 to $30 Per Carat

Importers advise that prices in the primary market have advanced $10 to $30 since January. This increase will be felt in this country within the next four months.

In addition to this the Democratic Caucus of the House of Representatives have recommended a duty of 10 per cent on rough diamonds and a duty of 20 per cent on polished diamonds.

This duty will no doubt be levied on diamonds as soon as the Tariff bill is passed. This, of course, will cause a still further advance.

This is a favorable time to buy in anticipation of your wants.

Call or write for our booklet, "Facts About Diamonds." This book quotes net prices on all grades and weights. It explains our method of sending diamonds on approval and selling on attractive monthly payments.

tectives found a woman's undershirt on the ground in the rear of the St. Jean hotel. It was blood-stained and full of holes. It is being held.

Among his possessions is a photo postal card addressed to him at 211 Formwalt street, mailed from Atlanta May 17, 1911. In this Bowen is greeted "Wie Geht's?" The girl on the reverse side is a blond.

Bowen registered at the hotel from Atlanta. At the boarding house he told the proprietor that he was a railroad clerk. He admitted having heard of the pencil factory where Mary Phagan was employed, but said he never worked there.

DIDN'T KNOW MARY PHAGAN.

Bowen doubtless figured on remaining in Houston for some time, as he asked the boarding house propriety to secure him a roommate so that living expenses might be lessened. At the time of his arrest he wore a gray suit and a gray cap to match. He smoked both cigarettes and cigars.

Orders were given at police station that nobody would be permitted to see Bowen. Previous to these instructions a reporter saw Bowen in his cell. The young man said he never knew the Phagan girl. He said he had done nothing to deserve arrest. While talking he shook nervously, but accounted for this by saying that he had spent a sleepless night. Bowen does not weigh more than 125 pounds.

At one time he was employed by the Rock Island railroad as a stenographer.

Atlanta's police chief has wired that Bowen be held pending investigations.

Local officials, knowing that rewards aggregating $3,200 have been offered, are greatly agitated.

Bowen is an independent kind of fellow. At first he seemed to be mild-mannered, but later he seemed to challenge the authorities to produce real evidence against him.

A later investigation of his trunk revealed a picture of a girl signed "Mary." Another was signed "M. J. P."

BOWEN HASN'T BEEN IN ATLANTA SINCE LAST FALL, SAYS BROTHER

M. R. Bowen, of Newnan, elder brother of Paul P. Bowen, whom Atlantians remember, was reached by The Journal over long distance telephone Tuesday.

"My brother has been out west for several months," said he in answer to a number of questions. "He left Atlanta some time last fall, I think, and went to El Dorado, Ark., where he got a job in some stenographic work with the Rock Island railroad. He hasn't been back in this country since then that I know of. I got a letter from him almost two weeks ago. He has been in Houston for the past six weeks, traveling with the general manager of some railroad there, according to his letter. I have gotten three or four letters from him since he went out there. So far as I know, we never heard of Mary Phagan. If there was a photograph of her in his trunk, I can't explain it. He was normal as far as I know—never subject to dementia of any kind."

Mr. Bowen said that Paul was educated in the schools of Newnan and got a business education there and came to Atlanta about five years ago, getting his first job with the Morrow Transfer company, going then to the Duncan-Hodnett company (now W. S. Duncan company); going next to some other produce house, and then to the master mechanic's office of the Southern railway. When he left the Southern railway he went to El Dorado with the Rock Island road, and stayed with them (Mr. Bowen believed) until about six weeks ago, when he went to Houston.

At the office of the master mechanic of the Southern railway it was stated that Paul P. Bowen worked there about two years. He was a steady chap and performed his duties very well. He left there to go to Arkansas with the Rock Island railway officials.

The master mechanic said further that Charles Kimball, working there in the office, but out of town at the moment, had stated during the morning that he had received a letter from Paul Bowen, dated at Houston, April 25.

Mary Phagan was killed on the night of April 26.

S. S. May, of the Capital City laundry, was a friend and correspondent of Paul Bowen. He described his friend Tuesday as having sandy hair, dark complexion, weight between 130 and 135 pounds and height 5 feet 6 inches. Bowen is a steady going chap, said Mr. May. Mr. May confirmed details furnished by others concerning Bowen's residence and work in Atlanta. The only discrepancy was that Mr. May said he got a letter about three weeks ago from Paul Bowen, dated in El Dorado, Ark., in which Paul said he was going either to California or to the north. Mr. Bowen's statement that Paul had been in Houston for the past six weeks conflicted with this.

The records of the Atlanta Y. M. C. A. revealed Tuesday morning that Paul P. Bowen took a room in the Y. M. C. A. building in February of last year and spent several months there. He is remembered as a young man of about twenty years. So far as the secretary is able to judge, the young man bore a good reputation. It was understood at the time that Bowen was a bookkeeper in the employ of the Southern railway and that he worked at the Inman Yards.

The secretary said that Bowen left the Y. M. C. A. last spring and went, he understood, to Arkansas.

The Atlanta city directory for 1911, compiled during the last months of 1910, shows the name "Paul P. Bowen," and identifies the bearer as being employed with Alexander-Smith & Co., 52 1-2 East Alabama street, and rooming at 121 Capitol square.

The chief clerk of the Morrow Transfer company stated that Paul P. Bowen worked there as a stenographer about three and a half years ago, and that he had not seen him since. Bowen worked there about a year, said the chief clerk, and his services were satisfactory. The chief clerk believed that Bowen went from there to work for the Southern railway at Inman yards in some capacity. "He was a hard-working boy," said the chief clerk.

BOARDER REMEMBERS HIM.

At 131 Capitol square Paul P. Bowen was remembered by a fellow boarder as "a restless, irritable country boy." He was low of stature and of blonde complexion and hair, said she. At that time he worked for the Duncan-Hodnett Grain company, now the W. S. Duncan company. He came from Newnan, she remembered.

At the W. S. Duncan company's offices on Butler street Paul P. Bowen was remembered as a stenographer who worked there for four months, from June to September, 1910, and who was allowed to resign because the work was more exacting than he could fulfill. He was about twenty years of age. It was thought that he had been employed directly from a local business college.

CHIEF GETS WIRE.

Just before noon Chief of Police James L. Bowers received this telegram from George Peyton, chief of detectives, Houston, Texas:

"Am still holding Bowen as per your wire of this morning. He did stop at 185 Ivy street, Atlanta. He denies everything. Evidence against him here very strong. Mrs. A. Blanchet, formerly of Atlanta, suspected him. She gave first information."

At 185 Ivy street is a boarding house which has been conducted by Mrs. Eula G. Foraker for a number of years. Her daughter, Miss Ella Foraker, formerly lived with Leo M. Frank. The stomach was removed, and Dr. Harris is now making a chemical analysis of its contents to see if there care any traces of polson.

Besides Dr. Harris and Dr. Hurt, Dr. Claude Smith, the city bacteriologist, will probably go on the stand to give the result of his analysis of the blood stains on the shirt found at Newt Lee's home, and of the blood stains found on the second floor of the factory and on Mary Phagan's clothing.

MURDER MUST HAVE OCCURRED DURING AFTERNOON, SAYS LEE

The negro night watchman, Newt Lee, held as a suspect in connection with the murder of Mary Phagan, while denying any connection with it, says at the same time that no murder could have been committed by anybody while he was in the factory.

The negro talked with detectives in his cell in the tower early Tuesday afternoon it was reported.

To them he declared that he believed Mary Phagan was killed some time during the afternoon of Saturday, April 26, before he began his work for the night.

If she was killed on the second floor, where blood stains were found, said he, it could not possibly have been done without him knowing something of it, for he passed the very spot where the blood stains were found on the floor, twice every half hour after he went to work at 6 o'clock, said he.

Nor could any outery have been raised in the basement after he went to work, he assured the detectives, for every half hour he went to the foot of the ladder in the basement.

It is said that the negro is showing a strong disposition to help the detectives solve the mystery.

CITY DETECTIVES SAY QUINN HAS CHANGED HIS STORY

The detectives attacked no importance to Foreman Lemmie Quinn's introduction into the evidence. They say that several days ago they questioned him closely about his movements, and that he declared to them that he was not in the factory from the time he left work there Friday afternoon until he returned to work Monday morning. They say that after Frank had involved him Monday afternoon, when they brought him to headquarters and quizzed him again, he said he had forgotten previously about having been in the factory.

Lemmie Quinn, foreman of the tipling department of the National Pencil factory, who is said to have visited Leo M. Frank, the superintendent, in the latter's office Saturday afternoon a few minutes after Mary Phagan is supposed to have left, Tuesday morning corroborated Mr. Frank's testimony relative to his visit.

Mr. Quinn said that he went by the pencil factory to see Mr. Shiff, the chief clerk, and talk baseball with him. He failed to find Mr. Shiff, and went into Mr. Frank's office merely long enough to greet him. He says that in substance he told Mr. Frank, "Well, you see you can't keep me away even on holidays. I see you're busy, so I won't stay."

There was nothing unusual about his visit to the factory, he said. He had been accustomed, he said, as most foremen are, to drop by the factory on off days.

Mr. Quinn said that he saw no one in the factory except Mr. Frank. He stayed there only a few minutes, he said, and was out of the factory before 12:30.

He went to the soda fount at the corner of Hunter and Forsyth streets, he said, chatted for a few minutes with two girl employes of the factory who were there, then went to a pool room, to a clothing store, where he bought a hat, waited for the baseball extras, then went to his home at 31-B Pulliam street.

Mr. Quinn said that about 8:30 o'clock Sunday morning he met a policeman near his home who told him that a girl had been murdered. When he learned that the body had been found at the National Pencil factory, he says, he told the officer that he must know the girl, since he also worked there. He went to the undertaking establishment and saw the body, then, he says.

"From the undertaker I tried to call up Mr. Sig Montag, the general manager, and also Mr. Frank," Mr. Quinn said, "but couldn't get either of them. Then I came over to the factory, where I found several people connected with the company, and we went through the building."

Mr. Quinn said that he has been with the National Pencil company about four and a half years.

He denied that the solicitor general had accused him of taking a bribe to protect Mr. Frank. The solicitor general had asked him whether anyone had offered him a bribe, he said, and he told him "no."

Mr. Quinn said that he last saw the Phagan child on Monday. He had no reason to suspect anyone, he said. So far as he knew, he said, no man has left the service of the pencil company since the tragedy.

"I am just as much up in the air as anybody," he said, "and am willing to do all I can to ferret the mystery out."

TWENTY-FIVE INJURED IN RIOT IN SYRACUSE

Militia Called Out to Quell Strikers After Many, Including Policemen, Were Hurt

(By Associated Press.)

SYRACUSE, N. Y., May 6.—Twenty-five men, policemen and Italian strikers, were hurt in a battle here today and the mayor and sheriff have decided the militia shall be called out. The revolvers of the police were matched against guns, stones and clubs of the strikers. Two of the strikers were mortally wounded.

Eight policemen were hurt, four of whom are in the hospital suffering from wounds inflicted by bricks and stones.

The riots, which were the outcome of a laborers' and hod carriers' strike, were fiercest in front of the Catholic cathedral of the Immaculate Conception, only two blocks from the heart of the business section.

Firemen rushed to the scene and poured powerful stream upon the strikers, driving them back. Then a call for the state militia was sent out.

The trouble began when 200 Italians interferred with the work of construction at the First Baptist church. Fifty policemen, sent to the scene, fired over the heads of the mob and a fire company turned a hose into the crowd.

Rioting was renewed shortly after noon and Chief of Police Cadin sent all his men out with instructions that if they had to shoot, to shoot to kill.

COL. HUFF SAYS TRIAL WON'T PREVENT ATTACK

Macon Lawyer Will Broadcast His Criticism of Judge Speer

(Special Disbpatch to The Journal.)

MACON, Ga., May 6.—Judge W. I. Grubb, of Birmingham, Ala., will probably try Colonel W. A. Huff on Monday, May 19, on charges of contempt of court, for sending two rather caustic letters to Judge Emory Speer last July. Colonel Huff will be represented by his regular counsel, Attorneys Tom S. Felder and DuPont Guerry. The case, like all cntempt of court cases, will be tried without a jury. District Attorney Akerman will conduct the prosecution.

Colonel Huff has announced that the approaching trial will not hinder him in the least in making another attack on Judge Speer, which he has already planned to do. He recently placed "copy" of another attack he has written on the records of the court in the hands of printers, and just as soon as the pamphlets are completed he will distribute them over the country and send them to congress in an effort to have Judge Speer impeached.

The trial of the case has been pending since last year, and it has created much interest all over the state. Doubtless the federal court will be unable to accommodate the visitors the day of the trial.

WOMAN SICK FOURTEEN YEARS

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Elkhart, Ind.:—"I suffered for fourteen years from organic inflammation, female weakness, pain and irregularities. The pains in my sides were increased by walking or standing on my feet and I had such awful bearing down feelings, was depressed in spirits and became thin and pale with dull, heavy eyes. I had six doctors from whom I received only temporary relief. I decided to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial and also the Sanative Wash. I have now used the remedies for four months and cannot express my thanks for what they have done for me.

"If these lines will be of any benefit you have my permission to publish them."—Mrs. SADIE WILLIAMS, 455 James Street, Elkhart, Indiana.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., seem to prove this fact.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Facts in Nature

FOR centuries it has been known that Nature's most valuable health giving agents for the cure of disease are found in our American forests. Over forty years ago Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute at Buffalo, N.Y., used the powdered extracts as well as the liquid extracts of native medicinal plants, such as Bloodroot and Queen's root, Golden Seal and Stone root, Cherry bark and Mandrake, for the cure of blood diseases. This prescription as put up in liquid form was called

PYTHIANS WILL HAVE A CASTLE OF THEIR OWN

Application for Charter of $50,000 Association Filed in Courts Tuesday

Application for charter was filed on behalf of the Atlanta Pythian Castle association by Attorney Thomas J. Lewis in the superior courts of the county, Tuesday morning. The capital stock of the new association is stated at $50,000. Among the several incorporators are R. M. Jones, F. T. Ridge, Tom Pitt, C. A. Stokes and others.

Mr. Lewis explained that the charter will permit the erection, by all the Pythians in Atlanta, of a castle which will house all their lodges after the same fashion and upon practically the same plan of government as a Masonic temple houses Masons. The site of the new Pythian castle is yet to be selected, said he.

Enormous Hoot Owl Sent to Dan Carey For Grant Park Zoo

Another specimen has been added to Grant park zoo.

It is a hoot owl of enormous proportions, being larger than a full grown rooster, and it arrived Tuesday morning in a crate from W. C. Smith, of Roy, Ga., who captured it and presents it to Dan Carey, manager of parks.

The owl sat in its box on the radiator in Manager Carey's office Tuesday morning and glared and hissed at all comers.

Its eyes, like the eyes of every well developed owl, are big and fierce, with a black center surrounded by a yellow circle. The effect, when you stand close and gaze into them, is quite hypnotic; and then, after staring into your innermost soul for a moment, the owl will drop over its piercing orbs the peculiar film resembling a cataract.

WILSON URGED TO ASK FOR HEALTH DEPARTMENT

Dr. Harvey W. Wiley and Others Urge President to Call Conference to Discuss It

WASHINGTON, May 6.—President Wilson was urged today by a committee of the American Federal association to call a general conference to discuss plans for a federal department of public health and everything pertaining to the conservation of human life and efficiency. Prof. Irving Fisher, of Yale; Dr. John D. Murphy, of Chicago; Dr. L. K. Frankle and Dr. Aram Jacobi, of New York; Dr. Harvey W. Wiley and Senator Owen urged the idea.

Prof. Fisher declared that the president had listened attentively and had expressed his keen appreciation of the necessity for public health legislation, but that until he was able to accumulate more information and make deeper study into the questions involved he would be unable to commit himself.

Senator Owen had a private talk with Mr. Wilson on currency reform, arranging for an early conference to get at length the president's views.

William Martin, of Los Angeles, special representative of the Chinese-American League of Justice, brought the president's attention to what he termed humiliation suffered by the Chinese when admitted to this country. He declared Chinese business men, students and scholars exempted from the exclusion laws were not accorded courteous treatment when they arrived in California.

TRYING TO HAND US ONE

"BLOW-OUT" IN PLANT STOPS ALL STREET CARS

A big "blowout" in the Butler street plant of the Georgia Railway and Power company, about 12:20 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, cut off all the power from the street cars and electric elevators in Atlanta, except the few that are supplied by their own dynamos.

The "blowout" was fixe din about thirty minutes.

SAVANNAH IS ASKING FOR A FEDERAL COURT

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

SAVANNAH, Ga., May 6.—A number of Savannah lawyers headed by Mr. T. Mayhew Cunningham, left for Washington this afternoon for the purpose of urging upon the Georgia delegation in that body the necessity of a new federal court for Savannah.

They have been promised much support in their effort. Savannah feels that there should be a district court with this city as its headquarters. The grand juries of the present court at a recent session have rather discouraged the idea of a new court to be given over to the transaction of business in Savannah and its immediate vicinity. This however, will not deter the Savannah delegation from making every effort possible to secure it.

PRIVATE INTERESTS STOP ALASKA'S DEVELOPMENT

This Is the Charge Gifford Pinchot Made Before Territories Committee Tuesday

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 6.—Gifford Pinchot charged before the senate territories committee today that private interests had held up legislation to open Alaskan coal fields under a leasing system and named former Senator Guggenheim, of Colorado, as one of the men who had exerted his influence to prevent such legislation.

He told the committee that he could get the names of other men in and out of congress, who were in opposition to the leasing system.

Mr. Pinchot had been called to give his opinion of the bill for government aid in construction of Alaskan railroads. He was asked why, in his opinion, legislation to develop the Alaskan coal fields had taken so many years to get through congress.

"Do you mean that members of congress have been influenced by private interests against such legislation?" asked Senator Lippitt.

"I mean what you all know, that private interests have great influence in congress," returned Mr. Pinchot. "There was strong opposition from Senator Guggenheim to the passage of the leasing bill, here were others. I can get the names if you want them."

The former forecaster declared that in his judgment the government should operate railroads in Alaska. He believed in the leasing system for mines.

He added that if the government had retained possession of the coal fields of Pennsylvania there never would have been such "political corruption," as he said existed in that state.

Mr. Pinchot advocated the retention in government possession of all "factors of power," coal, oil and water power.

"Power," he said, "is the greatest tool of civilization. The curtailment of sources of power is the main reason for the high cost of living."

Mr. Pinchot was the only witness today.

B. Chester, and the interment was in Linwood.

PRISON CLERK CONFESSES $30,000 EMBEZZLEMENT

Lawrence Yerger Tells Mississippi Prison Board How He Obtained Funds

(By Associated Press.)

JACKSON, Miss., May 6.—"I am ready for my punishment. I am prepared to go to the penitentiary and serve my time, and when I finish the sentence I expect to return to Jackson and lead an honest life."

In these words, Lawrence Yerger, defaulting secretary of the Mississippi prison board of trustees, prefaced his complete confession to that body this morning of having embezzled sums aggregating $30,000 from the state during the past four years.

The former secretary explained in detail the various methods by which he had obtained the money.

During his confession Yerger took a roll of bills from his pocket amounting to $680 and threw it on the table before the trustees, stating that it was all the money he could raise to meet his shortage.

Governor Brewer has written a letter to the prison board asking the members of that body to co-operate with him in the investigation he has instituted to ascertain if there were others involved in Yerger's transactions.

Will California Blight The Great Exposition?

If the California legislators had set out designedly to blight the prospects of the Panama exposition which is to be staged at San Francisco, they could scarcely have found surer means to that remarkable end than the anti-alien bill which they have rushed to passage despite the President's earnest appeal and contrary to the best judgment of the country at large. That the thoughtful majority of Californians themselves are of similar opinion is evidenced in the movement already begun to demand a referendum on this foolish and dangerous measure; and there is reason to hope that the people of that State will yet repudiate a law that threatens their own as well as the nation's interests.

The Panama exposition promised to be the greatest world's fair in history; and, if relieved of this barrier, which political agitators seek to raise, it will become so in fact. Its purpose is to celebrate the completion of the Panama canal as a vast achievement, not only for the glory of the United States, but also for the good of the whole world. Every State in the Union is invited to participate in this generous enterprise as are also our neighboring republics in Central and South America, the nations of Europe and those of the Orient. The exposition was awarded to California, or rather was entrusted to her, in the confidence that she would make it a truly national and truly international affair.

But if such a law as the California legislature has enacted should go into effect and be followed, as it undoubtedly would be, with ill feeling and serious litigation, the exposition could not possibly win that cordial and widespread support which otherwise it would enlist. Should California adopt a course that sets her apart from the sisterhood of States and needlessly embarrasses the entire nation, should she assume the attitude that government's treaties with foreign powers may be broken whenever it suits special or local interests to do so, then she must take the consequences, which will inevitably arise both at home and abroad.

The question of Japanese land ownership is one which should be dealt with, if it is to be dealt with at all, by the national government through orderly processes of diplomacy, for it is a question that involves a national agreement and national responsibility. That was President Wilson's plea, as ably presented by Secretary Bryan to the California legislature. But Governor Johnson and his followers saw fit to disregard the proprieties and the far-reaching policy at stake and proceeded to act as though they alone represented the nation.

The result is that they have provoked an issue which, unless it is removed by the timely action of the people of California themselves, will bring on delicate litigation, if not international entanglements. The courts will be called on to settle not only the rights of the Japanese to land ownership, but also their right to citizenship, a question hitherto not agitated; and the effect of all this will be anything but favorable to the commercial interests of the country at large.

California will be placed before the nation and before the world in the role of a trouble-maker rather than that of the host which she can, if she will, so easily and so graciously play. The exposition be dwarfed, instead of enriched and magnified, by the fact that it is to be held within her borders.

There have been repeated indications that the thoughtful and really representative people of California opposed the anti-alien bill from the outset. They have recognized that such a measure, if not uncalled for, was beyond the province of a State legislature and that the problem at issue, if there really were a problem, should be left for diplomatic treatment. They have foreseen the injurious effects which such a law would have on the State's business welfare and particularly on the forthcoming exposition. The truth of this is witnessed in the appeals of San Francisco business and of the board of directors of the exposition that the Legislature at least suspend action on the anti-alien land bill.

It is to be hoped that this wise and far-sighted view will yet prevail and that California will throw aside all obstacles to the national and international success of the Panama exposition. If she does so, she may count upon the hearty support of the entire country and of the world; if not, she must fare as best she can on a narrow and isolated path.

The Georgia watermelon can't be affected by the tariff one way or the other.

The Failure of Huerta.

That was a somber but seemingly faithful picture of Mexican conditions which Mr. Charles Hines painted when he appeared last Saturday before the foreign relations committee of the Senate. Mr. Hines, formerly a Virginian and now president of the West Shore railroad, of Mexico, spoke from direct observation and gave a number of intimate touches which foreign dispatches have lacked but which, in the main, are confirmed by the State department's advices. His testimony, as summarized by The Journal's Washington correspondent, indicates that at no time since the exile of Porfirio Diaz were conditions so unsettled in Mexico as they are today.

In all the republic, we are told, there are but three States which are even partly free from the fire of rebellion or from the harryings of desperate adventurers. Provisional President Huerta is popularly regarded as a red-handed conspirator rather than as an official commanding the people's confidence and respect; and, to quote directly, "it has become apparent even to his supporters that he can never pacify the country." Most noteworthy of all is the fact that the temporary alliance between Huerta and Felix Diaz has broken and the latter is now plotting for the overthrow of the dictator whom he induced to betray President Madero.

The most aggressive figure now in the Mexican field seems to be Venustiana Carranza, a leader of the so-called "Constitutionalists," who declare that orderly processes of government are their aim. Huerta, they insist, is a usurper and must yield the office he has seized. They demand a speedy election through which a new president can be legally chosen.

Carranza's distinctive quality is his genius for organization. Unlike many of revolutionary leaders who are continually preying upon Mexico for the moment's advantage or the handful of booty they may win, he covers each step of his advance with carefully systematized plans. "As fast as he seizes a section of territory," says The Journal's Washington story, "he forms a military government, restores order and makes the inhabitants pay for it by a heavy tax levy; his progress is slow but it is methodical."

Whether Carranza or the "Constitutionalist" movement will succeed in re-establishing efficient government in Mexico remains to be seen. Certain it is, however, that the Huerta regime is toppling. The provisional president is compelled to keep large detachments of the federal army in Mexico City to guard the approaches to his personal safety. The army, at no time strong or particularly loyal, is today more demoralized than ever. A spirit of mutiny is astir. A general is ordered hurriedly to the north to quell the rebels there, but no tidings of his movements are received at the capital; presumably he goes over to the revolutionists. An expedition sent forth in behalf of the provisional government is as likely as not to become, on the way, a new arm of the rebellion.

On every hand and almost every day the armed opposition to the Huerta government grows more serious and more resourceful. All developments confirm the wisdom of the United States in not recognizing the Huerta regime; and they also give rise to the question, what will happen when the present would-be dictator falls?

Will the "Constitutionalists," profiting by the tragically witnessed failure of murderous politics, seek to restore government through civilized means or will they repeat the barbarous story of the past few months? Will there emerge a man strong enough to unite and hold behind him the thoughtful element of the Mexican people, and is that element itself numerous and vigorous enough to carry out its will? Only time can answer.

Manufacturers Favor Whitehall Regrading.

The manufacturers and jobbers on Whitehall street stoutly disclaim any opposition to the regrading of that thoroughfare. "On the contrary and without exception," they affirm in a published statement, "we consider it (the proposed regrading) the greatest street improvement that can be made in our entire city."

This enterprise should be carried into effect chiefly because of its value to the entire community's interests and particularly because of the quickening and constructive effect it will have on the growth of the South Side. That portion of Whitehall street and its environs should, by every natural circumstance, be a great manufacturing and jobbing center. The regrading work will go a long way toward turning these rich possibilities into results.

Three Presbyterian Assemblies

By Frederic J. Haskin

It is hard for those outside of Presbyterian circles to differentiate between the three bodies represented by the assemblies which convene in Atlanta on May 15. The largest is that of the Presbyterian church in the United States of America. It is familiarly known as "The U. S. A.", and represents the churches in the northern states. The Presbyterian church in the United States is the official name of the body representing the southern states, while the United Presbyterian church is a body resultant principally from a union of several synods of the Associated Reformed church which was made in Pittsburg in 1858.

• • •

The "U. S. A." or the northern branch of the Presbyterian church is the largest. Its membership includes over two-thirds of the entire number of Presbyterians of the country and nearly three-fourths of the ministers. It has nearly 10,000 churches and at least twelve theological seminaries. Its power was greatly increased in 1906 when it was united with the Cumberland Presbyterian church, a body which at the time of the union numbered about 100,000 members, and included a number of educational institutions, as well as many large and influential churches. The Cumberland Presbyterian church was started in 1803 as a result of a controversy between the synod of Kentucky and the Cumberland presbytery over the ordination of certain men as ministers who were judged deficient in education by the higher authorities. The principles involved were similar to those which during the preceding century caused the disruption of the Presbyterian church into the New and Old Sides represented by the New York and Philadelphia synods. The Cumberland church also desired a little broader creed. It was Calvinistic in doctrine excepting that it would not accept the doctrine of predestination precisely as held by the Presbyterians. The revision of the Westminster Confession of Faith and the suplemental statement, adopted by the Presbyterian church of the United Church of America in 1903, paved the way for the union by the slight modification demanded. The union was officially adopted in 1906, although a small proportion of the Cumberland church refused to unite and there has been considerable friction and litigation to secure the proper titles to church property.

• • •

The Presbyterian church in the United States, commonly known as the Southern church, originated with the Civil war. In August, 1861, delegates from ten synods, including forty-seven presbyteries, met in Augusta, Ga., and constituted the first general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the Confederate States of America. This new organization at once adopted a vigorous home and foreign missionary policy. It took charge of the missionary work among the Indians in Indian Territory who had been persuaded by General Pike to cast their lot with the Confederacy through their sympathy with the slave owners. In 1863 it received the Independent Presbyterian church, a body of thirteen churches and four ministers located in South Carolina. The next year a union was also formed with the United synod which represented in the south the New Side of the old schism which had separated the church in the eighteenth century. It was composed of the Scotch-Irish element which had settled in the southern states.

• • •

The southern Presbyterian church is generally regarded as more strict in its requirements than the northern church. It maintains theological schools at Richmond, Va.; Cumberland, S. C., and at Louisville, Ky., in each of which the Calvinistic creed is emphasized. The school at Louisville lately has been partially united with the seminary at Danville which is under the direction of the northern assembly so that in the management of these two schools the north and the south are uniting in a way that bids fair to promote the feeling of church unity so much desired by many of the leaders of both bodies.

The United Presbyterian church, which will be represented in the assembly by over 200 commissioners, is in some respects the most rigid of the three bodies. It bases its doctrine upon the Westminister Confession of Faith, with a modification of the chapter upon the authority of civil magistrates, accepts both the larger and shorter catechisms and the judicial testimony. It has five special articles for the regulation of its members. The first of these articles prohibits the owning of slaves. The second declares against all secret and oath-bound societies and recommends that church members do not belong to them. The third recommends close communion upon the ground that the sacrament should be administered only to those who have assented to the doctrines of the church. The fourth advocates public testimonies or experiences at special times.

• • •

The fifth article is the one which tends now to make the chief distinction between the United Presbyterian church and the other branches of the same denomination. It states that it is the will of God that Psalms should be used in service since hymns are the composition of uninspired men and, therefore, are not suitable to be used in church service. In some of the more rigid of the United Presbyterian churches, organs are not permitted and the Psalms are chanted without any instrumental accompaniment. In most of them, however, the best obtainable poetic versions of the Psalms are used in praise services, and these are set to suitable music and are sung in the same manner as the hymns in other churches.

• • •

The completion of the arrangements for the union between the United Presbyterian church and the southern body will in all probability be the most important event in connection with this joint meeting of the three general assemblies. Committees from each body were appointed last year to ascertain if a practical basis of union can be found and if so to report it to the assemblies this year. The committees have agreed upon such a basis. While it has not yet been published it is believed that it will prove acceptable to both bodies. An interesting circumstance in connection with the simultaneous meeting of these three assemblies in Atlanta is the presentation of three gavels by the committee of arrangements. The gavel made for the northern assembly is to be known as the Whitefield gavel as it is made from wood taken from the first Presbyterian church at Newburyport, Mass., where the great evangelist once preached and was buried, and from wood taken from a tree on historic ground at Savannah, Ga., where his Bethesda stood until it was burned.

A Sunday school class was studying a missionary lesson and the teacher was telling of customs among the Eskimos. She said:

"I have read an article by a traveler among these people, and it is the duty of the Eskimo's wife to chew her husband's clothes to keep them soft and pliable, as the skins get stiff, and therefore, a woman is chosen according to her chewing ability, every man endeavoring to get a wife with strong teeth."

END OF A FIASCO

(From The Atlanta Constitution of May 6.)

News dispatches report today that the supreme court of the United States yesterday dismissed the case of the government against The Atlanta Journal, involving alleged violation of the postal regulations. The verdict of the court was unanimous.

This is an end to the miserable effort of Hitchcock and his bureaucratic spies to involve The Journal in a manner which was overwhelmingly resented by the public, not only because the people knew that the management of The Journal was not involved in any petty swindle to save a few dollars in mail payments, but more particularly for the reason that the Hitchcock procedure against legitimate business was a departure entirely new in federal administrative methods in this country.

It will be recalled that when The Journal was first apprised of the fact that it was to be the victim of Hitchcock's animus the information came in the nature of an indictment for trial without having been given opportunity to make even a showing as to the accuracy of its figures, or of the fact that it was, at least in its own opinion, making an honest effort to comply with the law. That was considered an unimportant detail to Hitchcock and his spies.

Of course, the government lost in the lower United States courts, and now the supreme court has put the stamp of its disapproval upon the whole proceeding by dismissing the case.

It is the end of the cheapest fiasco in which this government has ever been involved, and it is to be hoped that never, as long as this is a government, will there be a repetition of such a disgraceful and tyrannical proceeding from any of its departments.

HONOR

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

(Copyright, 1913, by Frank Crane.)

In order to understand, you must learn that many words, and especially words that stand for very high and important ideas, usually have two meanings, which are often directly opposite one to the other.

Love, for instance, may signify the very loftiest sentiment conceivable, even, as the theologians tell us, for the nature of the godhead; and, again, it may be used to indicate the most unintelligent desire.

One of these words with a dual meaning is "honor." There is hardly a feeling in the human breast as praiseworthy as honor. It is the best form of self-respect. It is manliness or womanliness raised to the nth power. It is character consummate. It is the true foundation of business success, the basis of any happy marriage, and, altogether, the cleanest, brightest, and solidest moral metal in the spirit of man.

Naturally, so good a thing must be stolen by scoundrels for their counterfeit schemes. So we find some of the meanest, most selfish and caddish sentiments labelled "honor."

The duelling place was called "the field of honor," where two cowardly men afraid to trust their cause to justice and cowed by evil conventions, met for murder. It has taken the world a good many hundred years to see that duelling, far from being honorable, is unjust, contemptible, and settles nothing except to determine who has the most skillful arm.

There is a large portion of the world's population who still believe that it is honorable to be endowed, to be idle and to be useless. So far it has never been the custom to dub a farm hand or a machinist "the honorable Mr. So-and-so." Yet work is more honorable than sport, and earning money than getting it from your rich uncle.

But perhaps the worst inversion of the meaning of honor appears when the term is applied to nations.

Reading the speech of a certain "honorable" gentleman delivered in our national congress one receives the impression that self-restraint, courtesy and the due processes of justice in established tribunals are dishonorable, while it is honorable to froth at the mouth, hurl defiance, and yelp for war upon the appearance of the least divergence of opinion between America and any other nation.

It seems to be honorable to spend billions preparing for war, but dishonorable to make plans for the settling of international disputes by arbitration.

It seems to be honorable to lie, quibble and luster when the terms of a treaty turn out to our advantage, and dishonorable to adjust the matter by amicable consultation and rearrangement.

It is honorable to be a profane, narrow, grafting, immoral "Christian" white men, in Africa, the Orient, and the Seven Seas; but it is dishonorable, it is sickly, mawkish cowardice to act as a decent gentleman.

When you hear a man blow about honor it is time to inquire just what brand of honor he means.

"For Brutus is an honorable man;
So are they all, all honorable men."

SEASONABLE SHOPPING.

Forth does the frugal housewife hie,
The moment that her lord departs,
With stranger janitors to vie
In cold and haughty bluffing arts.

She visits all the vacant flats
And views those flats with lofty scorn;
The agent's heart assails his slats,
His brow is dark, his mien forlorn.

A garage, a solarium,
A porte-cochere, a peristyle,
Beamed ceilings, an aquarium,
Icebox built in, bathrooms of tile.

A quiet neighborhood, a view,
A sleeping porch, new painted walls,
A sound-proof ceiling, plumbing new,
Two stairs, new carpets on the halls—

These are a few of her demands,
And if they should be promised her—
The agent here throws up his hands—
She offers thirty dollars per!

Her ideal does she think to find,
That she seeks till she's like to drop?
Nay! Hers the joy of womankind—
'Tis a delight for her to shop!

April 30.—With Sam'l Adams and Al Thomas to the tennis-court and Bebee and I did play against them, and with ill-success, gaining but 2 setts in 7. Yet when we did challenge them to play on the morrow-day, they did say that they were going from the city and could not, but I do hold they do not care to essay it again, but had liefer crow over their victories. Thence home, and felt so fine I did labour for near 2 hours without wearying. Came Mistress Eva Rigley the librarian and told me of the folk that come to borrow books, and how that one woman did ask for a book, saying she know nor title nor author, and nought save that the tayle was about a man being in love with a woman. To the larder for a beaker of milk and so to-bed.

May 1.—With S. Merwin to luncheon and we talked of the vote for women and his opinions on it very sound, as they are on most matters. Too I did see a cartoon by Herbert Johnson in Mr. G. Played at pocket-billiards with Freddy Steele the artist and beat him roundly, though by reason of my great good luck. To the ballpark and sat with K. Speed the pamphleteer and saw again the Chance team to lose. So home and reading "The Sweetest Sweetmeat," a tayle by Fanny Hurst: did mistliking it greatly.

Queer Names in California

The Gazetteer of the Surface Waters of California, just issued, shows many curious similarities in nomenclature, common and favorite names having been given to different streams and lakes by the early settlers, who christen most of the natural features in new countries.

Such characteristic pioneer names as Deadman creek and Deadman Canyon creek are applied to five different streams; in the area covered by the report there are ten Dry creeks, two Humbug creeks, two Jackass creeks, five Lion and Lion Canyon creeks, five "Lost" streams, and two Mad rivers. Bear, Bear canyon, and Bear Trap are applied to thirty-six different water bodies, and there are five Grizzly creeks.

There are fifteen Coyote water bodies, two Wildcat, one Cat and two Gatos (cat, Spanish) creeks, one Skunk creek, nine Deer creeks, one Rabbit, two Quail, two Dog and one Scorpion creek.

There are also ten Devil and two Diablo creeks, but the saints, male and female (san and santa), cover a dozen pages of the gazetteer. There is also a Poison creek, and a dozen Snake and Rattlesnake creeks. The fish are represented in a page full of Eel rivers, several Fish creeks and one Sardine creek.—New York Sun.

C. G. MARSHALL IS GIVEN BIG PROMOTION BY "A. P."

News Editor of Southern Division Tendered Farewell Dinner at Capital City Club

C. G. Marshall, for more than two years news editor of the southern division of the Associated Press, with headquarters in Atlanta, has been promoted to a responsible position in the central division of the Associated Press. After a farewell dinner tendered him at the Capital City club Mr. Marshall left Atlanta Monday night to assume his new duties in Chicago.

In the central division he will be associated with Superintendent Paul Cowles, for several years located in Atlanta as superintendent of the southern division of the Associated Press.

Before his advent to Atlanta Mr. Marshall held several important positions in the Washington office of the Associated Press and won distinction and promotion rapidly by the manner in which he covered many stories of national interest.

Soon after becoming news editor of the southern division he was dispatched to Honduras as war correspondent for the Associated Press and remained in the Central American country for more than two months. Shortly after his return he was rushed to Galveston, Tex., when United States troops were mobilized on the Mexican border as a result of threatening conditions in Mexico.

Mr. Marshall also covered many important southern stories during his service here, including the disastrous Tennessee mine disaster near Knoxville, and the Beach trial at Aiken, S. C.

Although still a very young man, Mr. Marshall's advancement has been so rapid that he now is to assume a position demanding exceptional ability. His rapid rise has been due to his devotion to the Associated Press interests and to his remarkable facility for writing vivid and interesting stories of important news events.

WORLD'S ALLIANCE WILL BE INVITED TO ATLANTA

Ministers' Association Wants Next Convention of World's Presbyterian Alliance

The world's Presbyterian alliance, which meets next June in Dundee, Scotland, will be invited to hold its next convention in 1914 in Atlanta, the "gate city of the south."

This action was decided by the Evangelical Ministers' association Monday morning which voted favorably upon the invitation extended by Dr. G. A. Beattie and at the same time decided to confer with the chamber of commerce and other civic bodies with a view of obtaining their aid. The invitation contained the provision that Rev. W. C. Schaeffer, the presiding officer, personally extend the invitation. It is probable that the invitation will be carried in person to Scotland by W. H. Roberts, of Philadelphia.

Mr. Roberts is stated clerk of the Presbyterian church, U. S. A., and is secretary for America of the World's Presbyterian alliance. He expects will be in Atlanta next week for the joint assemblies of the U. S. A. and U. S. and U. P. churches.

The World's Presbyterian alliance is a conference of practically every Presbyterian organization in the world, and meets every June.

BANKER WITHAM TO JOIN COMMISSION IN EUROPE

W. S. Witham, Sr., the well-known Atlantian, who is head of the Witham chain of banks in Georgia, will leave the latter part of this month for Europe, where he goes to join the American commission on farm credits. He was appointed on this commission by Governor Joseph M. Brown.

On this appointment the financial weekly bulletin of Dow, Jones & Co., New York, says in part as follows:

"Governor Joseph M. Brown, of Georgia, has appointed William S. Witham, Sr., of the Bankers' Trust company, Atlanta, a member of the special commission on farm credit, which will study rural credit conditions in Europe. In doing so he has recognized a fact which banking people in the north and east have often failed to appreciate, namely, that in the southern states, where agriculture is pre-eminently the ruling business, the banks are a good deal nearer to the people than in most other portions of the country."

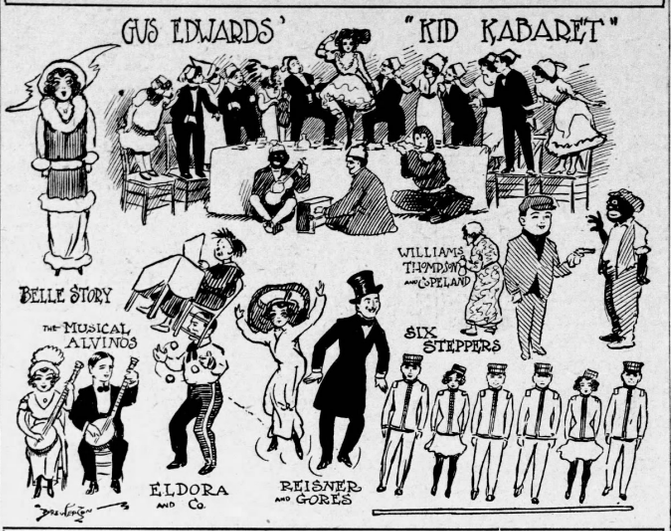
WITH CARTOONIST BREWERTON AT THE FORSYTH



IN THE LOCAL PLAYHOUSES

(Criticisms of initial performances at the local theaters are written by members of The Journal staff. All other matter appearing in this column is furnished by the theater managements.)

ATLANTA—The Girl from Out Yonder.

FORSYTH—Vaudeville.

BIJOU—Vaudeville and Pictures.

Gus Edwards' "Kid Kabaret," one of the best and largest organizations of juveniles on the vaudeville stage, gave a delightful entertainment at the Forsyth theater Monday night. This number heads a clever bill, which has many pretty girls. Just the kind of attractions that make one forget that summer is almost, if not already, here.

The youngsters whom Edwards, the clever composer and dancer, has trained, are a show in themselves. They dance and sing well, and their acts move so quickly that one regrets when the curtain falls on their number. They feature this week Frank L. Stanton's poem, "You've Got to Quit Kickin' My Little Pickaninny," the music of which was composed by Edwards himself right here in Atlanta.

Miss Story is a beautiful young woman and an attractive singer. Her act was well received. Her gowns were stunning. Her voice shows marvelous training, and she apparently has it under perfect control.

Hart's Six Steppers, not horses, but four pretty girls and two young fellows, are lithe and graceful, and make the most of a terpischorean act.

The Burglars' Union is an amusing farce.

A decided hit was scored by Miss Billie Long and company in "The Girl From Out Yonder" at the Atlanta theater Monday evening.

The delightful play that has pleased thousands in years past was a success because Miss Long was at her best and because in the cast there was an Atlanta girl, Miss Agnes Tinsley Harrison, who has already made her mark in stock in New York City. In her debut, before a local audience, Miss Harrison appeared on the program as Marjorie Mason. But everyone knew her on her first appearance before the footlights and she was given a most cordial reception. At the conclusion of the second act, a small army of ushers marched down the aisle and completely deluged the pretty young miss with flowers. They were in bunches, in baskets and in corsages. She gathered what she could in her arms until all but the top of her head was hidden. On the stage were scattered still more. She bowed in recognition of the attentions and it was the signal for enthusiastic applause.

DR. NICHOLSON MAKES ADDRESS TO LAW SCHOOL

Lawyers Who Prolong Client's Injury Scored by Medical Expert

Dr. William Perrin Nicholson in an address to the members of the Atlanta bar and the students of the Atlanta Law school Monday night, said:

"I've seen people stay on crutches for years who didn't any more need them than you and I," denouncing any lawyers who would, for reasons best known to themselves, prolong their client's injury.

Dr. Nicholson then explained that it was understood that a corporation lawyer insisted that a green plaster would cure spinal meningitis, and that any victim would be made well at the sight of real money.

"If you think your client is going to get well before the trial, said the medical expert, "do your duty; there are other cases to be settled."

The physician then explained that it was a doctor's duty when summoned to court to give impartial evidence, no matter on what side of the case the subpoena had come.

"Every principle of medical ethics is ignored by the doctor who speaks for 'our side of the case,' for the doctor is presumed to have no side whatsoever," he said.

All students of philosophy are invited to attend the class lectures which will be given Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock and Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock in the Altrurian book room, 500 Hillyer building.

NO SALOON AT MADISON AVE. AND WEST HUNTER

Long Fight in Council Ends in Closing of Beer Zone on That Block

The fight to get a near-beer saloon at the corner of Madison avenue and West Hunter streets, which has been pending in council off and on all the year, was finally brought to a close Monday afternoon when council overrode Mayor Woodward's veto of an ordinance closing the near-beer zone on that block of Madison avenue.

Councilman J. J. Greer, who had been active in behalf of the saloon, led a fight to sustain the mayor, although on other matters he has consistently opposed the mayor, but council closed the zone notwithstanding the veto, by a vote of 16 to 6.

It has been admitted on the floor of council more than once that the effort to re-open the zone contemplated granting a saloon permit to only one saloon, and when this became known a majority of council determined that the zone should stay closed.

PLAYGROUNDS IN DEMAND NOW IN OPEN DISTRICTS

Congestion No Longer Associated Solely With Them, Meeting in Richmond

A few years ago the thought of playgrounds was linked with congested districts. A playground was merely a free place to play. Now the value of recreation for all is recognized, and supervised play is urged quite as much for the child with acres of lawn as for the one whose sole "back-yard" is a fire-escape. And this is increasingly true as might be proved by a tabulation of letters asking for help which are received by the Playground and Recreation Association of America.

So many problems needing wise and careful thought have arisen that a special hour at the Recreation Congress in Richmond, Va., May 6 to 10, 1913, will be devoted to a consideration of playground problems in municipalities of less than 10,000 and to play-ground problems in municipalities of 25,000.

Workers who have faced and solved in a measure at least these problems will speak of their experiences.

MUNICIPAL CENSORSHIP OF THE "MOVIE" FILMS

Also Censorship of Vaudeville Acts in the "Movies" Provided by New Ordinance

Henceforth the motion picture films exhibited in Atlanta, and the vaudeville acts in motion picture theaters, will be censored by the trustees of the Carnegie library.

An ordinance to this effect was passed by general council Monday, and became effective immediately on approval by the mayor.

The method of censoring the films is that the film exchanges shall exhibit them to the library trustees before placing them with the theaters.

The method of censoring the vaudeville acts is simply that the trustees drop in whenever they take a notion, and if they see any acts which they don't like they notify the management to cut them out.

The present membership of the library board is as follows: Willis M. Everett, E. Marvin Underwood, T. B. Gay, Harrison Jones, H. G. Matherson, W. W. Gaines, W. B. Disbro, Emile Breitenbucher, W. M. Etheridge, J. H. Johnston and Councilman Charles Whiteford Smith and Mayor Woodward, ex-officio.

DR. M'NAUGHTON GIVEN NEW LEASE ON LIFE

A respite was Monday granted Dr. W. J. McNaughton, who was to have been hanged Friday for the murder of Fred Flanders. The hanging was to take place in Emanuel county and was postponed by order of the governor until Friday, September 5.

The reason given for granting the respite was that the governor did not think the law could be carried out until after the trial of Mrs. Flanders, who is charged with being implicated in the crime. Her case was called at Swainsboro last week, and postponed until September.

Flanders died under suspicious circumstances, and Dr. McNaughton, who lived with him at the time, was accused of administering some kind of poison.

NEW OFFICERS CHOSEN FOR UNIVERSITY CLUB

The following were the nominations for the officers of the University club at its third annual meeting held at the club house on Peachtree street Monday evening:

President, Governor-elect John M. Slaton, University o Georgia; vice presidents, H. M. Atkinson, Harvard; Dr. S. S. Wallace, Columbia, and J. H. Porter, University of Georgia; secretary treasurer, Thomas Whipple Connally, Yale; chairman executive committee, Morris Brandon, Yale.

There was no opposition to any of the nominations, and the election of each will be ratified unanimously next Monday at a formal election.

A number of propositions were considered, as to a new location, but no definite action taken. In all probability the club will build its own home in the near future.

ATTEMPTS TO CRIPPLE FLY SCREEN ORDINANCE

But Council Wouldn't Pass Greer's Amendment to Excuse Restaurants

An attempt to cripple the fly screen ordinance by amending it so that restaurants may substitute electric fans for screens was frustrated by the general council Monday afternoon.

Councilman J. J. Greer, of the Fifth ward, introduced the amendment and urged its passage. He said "osculating" fans will keep out the flies as well as screens. The clerk read it "oscillating" fans.

In a moment several councilmen were on their feet, demanding that the amendment be referred to the ordinance committee, and it was given that direction.

The fly screen ordinance was passed in 1911, after a long fight in which the people affected by the ordinance brought to bear strong pressure to defeat it.

In 1912 the fruit dealers succeeded in getting it amended so as to let them substitute fans for screens, and now it is a common sight to see flies swarming over fruit.

To excuse restaurants from the ordinance would be simply to knock out another of its main provisions and leave only bakeries and a few other places subject to its requirements.

The ordinance committee probably will report unfavorably on the Greer amendment.

DIAMOND THIEF BEGINS HIS STOCKADE SENTENCE

George T. Wrenn, who participated in the famous Gilsey diamond robbery, began his twelve months' sentence in the county chain gang.

Since the trial he has been out on bail, and has been a student of medicine in Birmingham. When his sentence was confirmed, he at once returned to the city and gave himself up to the jailers at the Tower. He was later taken to the Bellwood avenue convict headquarters.

COTTON MARKET STEADY; PRICES SLIGHTLY LOWER

Market in New York Closed 1 Pt. Up to 5 Pts, Off From Previous Close

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, May 6.—Cotton opened steady at a decline of 1@2 points on easier cables from Liverpool, continued favorable weather reports and a bearish feeling that the increased mill curtailment reported late yesterday at Fall River, there was no definite deal of cotton for sale, however, and the market steadied up to a shade over yesterday's closing during the early trading, covering and buying for a reaction which was probably encouraged by favorable European political news and reports that the continent was buying new crop positions in Liverpool.

After showing a net advance of about 5 to 9 points the demand from shorts and reactionists became a little less active and after the close of Liverpool the market eased off 3 or 4 points from the best. Buying by early buyers helped the reaction, but selling did not become aggressive and the market was steady at middday with the active months still showing a net gain of 4 to 5 points.

The weekly report of the weather bureau was considered favorable, as the only complaint was of dry weather in the Carolinas, which was promised relief by the forecast, and after receiving figures that rain was already falling in Georgi and Alabama, the market eased off to within 2 or 3 points of last night's closing figures, during the early afternoon.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, May 6.—Spot cotton futures opened steady, unchanged to 2 points down, compared with the last prices of yesterday. Cables were not as good as expected and being very aggressive, chiefly because of reports of an increasing export movement and a somewhat better spot inquiry, especially for fall shipments. Weather was unsettled over the belt, although the bulls pointed out that the rains in the central and western sections of the belt were not needed. First prices were 1 point lower in the earl grading. At the end of the first half hour of business prices were 5 to 6 points over the final figures of yesterday.

From the middle of the morning on the market was dull and narrow. Bullish talk of replanting in the cotton belt and of prospects of too much rain in parts of the west to plant was met by bearish claims of shutting down of mills. New England mills are said to be troubled heavily. The weekly weather sports were colorless and confirmed only rather unfavorable reports regarding the progress of the crop. At noon the market stood at a net advance of 5 to 7 points.

COTTON GOSSIP

Times Democrat says: Rain in the western belt and the promise of rain in the eastern belt checked new crop shorts, but an increasing export movement and the fact that the interest in cotton is showing up slowly gave old crop shorts something to think about. The Sentinel incident figured in the gossip, but seemed to play no part as an influence on values. The closing of a big cotton mill at Fall River proved a boomerang to the bear when it was explained that the object was the installation of modern machinery which would enable the plant to reopen on full time, increasing the output with the same labor. Gradually the feeling seemed to fear that replanting over a larger area than generally understood to be made necessary by cool nights and by lack of rainfall would prove a factor in giving rise to a slowly developing belief that new crop movement would be delayed to a late period, compelling to be late. In view of the fact that the mills in Europe are generally credited with drawing up to their limit of cotton purchases known to be buying October, November and December options, the increased volume to excite comment, delay in the movement of the new crop will make a marked difference of moment. Heavy bidding for October contracts at the close of the New Orleans market resembled unusually moderate to be more nearly

L. M. FRANK'S COMPLETE STORY OF WHERE HE WAS AND WHAT HE DID ON DAY OF MARY PHAGAN MURDER

For Three Hours and a Half Mr. Frank Was on the Stand, Answering Questions About His Movements Every Hour and Minute of the Day—He Was Calm and Unruffled When Excused From Stand and Returned to the Tower

HE TELLS OF VISIT OF LEMMIE QUINN TO HIS OFFICE TEN MINUTES AFTER MARY PHAGAN RECEIVED WAGES

Introduction of Quinn Gives the Factory Superintendent an Important Witness, in Confirmation of His Statements. Only Three Witnesses Examined by Coroner at Session Monday Afternoon

For three hours and a half Leo M. Frank, general superintendent of the National Pencil factory in which Mary Phagan was murdered, faced the coroner's jury Monday afternoon and told minutely, detail by detail, in precise sequence, where he was and what he did during practically every minute of Saturday, April 26, Saturday night, and Sunday, April 27. When he had finished, his father-in-law, Emil Selig, was put upon the stand and questioned closely regarding what he knew of Frank's whereabouts and acts on those days. And after Mr. Selig had been excused, Mrs. Josephine Selig, his wife, was called to testify along the same line. These three witnesses occupied the entire session, Monday, which was at work for almost five hours.

That Lemmie Quinn, foreman of tipping department, visited the National Pencil factory shortly after Mary Phagan is supposed to have received her pay envelope and departed, was an absolutely new feature in the murder mystery brought out by Mr. Fra k's testimony.

While Mr. Quinn has not been on the stand he has corroborated Mr. Frank's statement in interviews with the detectives, and goes further by saying that he recalled his visit to the factory to the incarcerated superintendent.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Selig, father and mother-in-law of Mr. Frank, with whom the latter lives, were the only other witnesses examined Monday afternoon before the inquest was adjourned until Thursday morning at 9:30 o'clock.

When Mr. Frank left the witness stand at 6:20 o'clock, after three hours and a half of examination, he stated to a Journal reporter that he was not tired. He expressed none of the weariness for the ordeal he had just gone through. He was at once transferred to the tower.

Leo M. Frank, superintendent of the National Pencil factory, was the first witness when the inquest was resumed. Mr. Frank entered the commissioners' room where the inquest was being held at 2:45 o'clock. He was accompanied by Chief of Detectives Newport A. Lanford, Chief of Police James L. Beavers, Detective J. N. Starnes and Deputy Plennie Miner.

He was sworn at 2:50 o'clock and a systematic questioning was begun by Coroner Donehoo, who was occasionally prompted by Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey, Chief of Detectives Lanford.

"What is your name?" the coroner asked.

"Leo M. Frank," was the answer.

"Where do you live?"

"At 68 East Georgia avenue."

"What is your connection with the National Pencil factory?"

"I am general superintendent."

"How long have you been with the National Pencil factory?"

"Since August, 1908," was the answer.

"How long have you held the office of general superintendent?"

"Since November 1, 1908."

"Where were you prior to that date?"

"Just prior to that time I was buying machinery for the factory."

"Have you lived in Atlanta all your life?"

"No, sir."

"Where did you live before coming to Atlanta?"

"In Brooklyn, New York."

"Are you married or single?"

"I am married."

"Is your wife living?"

"Yes, sir."

"How many times have you been married?"

"Once only."

"Where did you live in Brooklyn, N. Y.?"

"My last address there was 152 Underhill avenue."

"In what business were you engaged in Brooklyn?"

"I was with the National Meter company."

"When did you leave Brooklyn?"

"About the middle of October, 1907."

"Where did you go?"

"To Atlanta, to confer with the National Pencil company."

"When did you go abroad?"

"The first week in November, 1907."

"When did you return to Atlanta?"

"August 1, 1908."

HIS DUTIES AT FACTORY.

"What are your duties at the pencil factory?"

"I look after the purchasing of material; inspect factory costs; see that orders are properly entered and filled, and look after the production in general."

"What time did you get up Saturday morning, April 26?" was the next question.

"About 7 o'clock."

"Do you and your wife live alone?"

"No, sir."

"With whom do you live?"

"My mother and father-in-law."

"Who are they?"

"Mr. and Mrs. Emile Selig."

"Have you any children?"

"No, sir."

"Does any one else live with you?"

"No, sir."

"How many servants have you?"

"There is only one on the place."

"What is his servant named?"

"I don't know her last name. Her first name is Minola. She is colored."

"What time does she get there?"

"About 8:30 o'clock."

"Was she on time Saturday, April 26?"

"Yes, sir."

LEFT HOME AT 8 A. M.

Mr. Frank said that he left his home about 8 o'clock that morning, Saturday, April 26. He remembered seeing his servant, Minola, and his wife, as he was leaving. He didn't remember seeing any one else. He was sure he did not see Mrs. Selig. He might have seen Mr. Selig, but he did not remember.

At his corner he can catch either the Washington street or the Georgia avenue car, said he. He did not remember which he boarded that morning. He did not remember talking to any one on the car. He arrived at the factory about 8:20 o'clock. He does not punch the time clock. Mr. Holloway, the day watchman, and Alonzo Mann, the office boy, both were there. Holloway was near the time clock as he went by. Alonzo, the office boy, was in the office. He did not remember whether any one was in the machine room. He didn't look back there. He didn't remember how long it was, perhaps an hour until several other people came in to get their pay envelopes. One man came to get his envelope for his son, and another for his stepson. One of the men was the father of a boy named Jimmie Grant, he remembered. Saturday being Memorial day, was a holiday in the factory, but he had instructed the office force to report and fire of questions, asking "How old is your stepson?"

"About fifteen or sixteen," he replied. "Does he wear long or short trousers?"

"Short."

"What did you do when you got back to the pencil factory?"

"I sorted orders for about ten minutes."

"What was in those orders?"

"I don't remember."

He didn't remember whether the orders or invoices were from in Atlanta or out of the city, he said.

"Do you usually get orders or invoices on the twenty-sixth?" was the next question.

"We get invoices when the goods are shipped," the witness answered.

"Do you remember any specific order or invoices on that date?" he was asked.

"No, sir, I do not," said Mr. Frank.

He had no specific times for taking up one work, said Mr. Frank. Usually he took what appeared to be most important at the time.

HE WAS ALONE, HE SAID.

He dictated letters to Miss Hall. She entered the orders that he had received that morning. He didn't remember just what he was doing while he did that. It took him about five or ten minutes to assort the orders. It took Miss Hall about fifteen or twenty minutes to enter them. When she had entered them she wrote postcard receipts for them. Then she copied the typewriter the letters that he had dictated to her.

That didn't take her long. About 12 o'clock he started copying the orders in the shipping department. He was alone, and answered, "Yes, as far as I know."

MARY CAME FOR WAGES.

"About 12:10 or 12:05 o'clock," said Mr. Frank, "this little girl who was killed came up and got her envelope. I didn't even hear any one with her. I didn't hear her speak to any one who might have been outside. I was in my little office attending at the orders when she came up.

"I don't remember exactly what she said.

"I looked up, and when she told me she wanted her envelope, I handed it to her. Knowing that the employes usually left their envelopes at the desk Miss Mattie Smith came in to get the pay envelopes of herself and her sister. He didn't remember whether there was anybody in the outer office at that moment. The office boy should have been there. His chief clerk was Herbert Schiff, a salesman, who had been acting in that capacity since the discharge of J. M. Gantt, the former incumbent. Schiff was not in the office. The stenographer should have been in the outer office. She is a Miss Eubanks. He didn't remember her first name.

He had been in the office about thirty or forty minutes when M. B. Darley, Wade Campbell and "Mr. Fullerton" came in. The first thing he did was look over his mail and the papers.

WENT TO MANAGER'S OFFICE.

"What sort of papers?" he was asked.

"Notes and orders," he replied, adding that the notes are memoranda for his attention about work around the factory. He put them in a folder, to get ready for Monday.

"What did you do after you went through the mail?" was the next question.

He replied that he went over to the manager's office about 10 o'clock. Before going there he talked several minutes with Darley and Campbell. He did not attend to the financial sheet then. He couldn't recall doing anything else. The manager's office is in the establishment of Montag Bros., 10 to 20 Nelson street, he said. Sig Montag is the manager. The coroner questioned him closely about what papers he handled that morning. He asked the witness, "What do you usually do after you get to the office when the factory is at work?"

Mr. Frank replied that usually he opened his desk, got out the orders, arranged them in systematic order, and at a few minutes after 7 o'clock he would go up into the factory and distribute the orders among the proper departments.

He said that he did not get the factory mail at this office. Sometimes he got personal mail there, he said. He went to the office that morning and got out the papers, but couldn't recall what the first one was. He answered numerous specific questions about where he was when the others came in, and how to make out a financial sheet, etc.

Frank said that he prepared a financial sheet Saturday afternoon. It bore the date of Thursday, the twenty-fourth, he said, in response to the coroner's question. Their week ended on Thursday, he said.

"Why didn't you make out the sheet on Thursday?" he was asked.

"I didn't know the pencil then. We generally get the payroll on Friday."

INTENDED TO GO TO GAME.

"Did you intend to go to the ball game on Saturday?" the coroner asked.

"Yes," replied Mr. Frank, "until I got up and saw it was a cloudy day."

He was asked why he didn't make out the final sheet in the morning, and replied that he had other matters—invoices, orders, etc.—to look after.

"When did you get down on the house books?" he was asked.

"Not on Saturday," he said.

Mr. Frank said that his stenographer was not at the office on Saturday, so he called a Miss Hall from Montag Brothers to help him. He went to Montag Brothers to get the official of the National Pencil company, who has his office there, he said, and shortly before 11 o'clock Miss Hall telephoned him that to return to the pencil factory and look over some important papers. When he got back to the pencil factory Miss Hall, his office boy and some others were in his office, he said.

At this point the coroner abruptly changed his line of questioning to ask "Is the house order book of April 30 in your handwriting?"

"No," replied the witness.

"How many others were there on April 30?"

"Eleven, I think," said Mr. Frank.

"Who entered those?"

"Miss Hall," said the witness.

The coroner then came back to the visit to Montag brothers, and Mr. Frank said that he remained there until about 11 o'clock. He said that he talked to several persons there on business.

The coroner asked him to try to refresh him memory. He still insisted that he did not remember stopping at any place, either on his way to or from Montag Brothers.

The coroner kept up his systematic

Coroner Donehoo fired question after question, related or without context, at Mr. Frank, the queries being rapid and precise. It was evident that the witness was to be examined most minutely.

Continuing, Mr. Frank remembered that during the morning of that Saturday Miss Mattie Smith came in to get the pay envelopes of herself and her sister. He didn't remember whether there was anybody in the outer office at that moment. The office boy should have been there. His chief clerk was Herbert Schiff, a salesman, who had been acting in that capacity since the discharge of J. M. Gantt, the former incumbent. Schiff was not in the office. where he found Harry Denham and Arthur White and Mrs. White, and told them he was going out and would look the door. Mrs. White, he thought, said she would go on out, and he thought she went away. He went by the stairway to that floor, he said.

The day watchman was there shortly after 11 o'clock, said he. He didn't remember exactly what time he left. Except on Saturdays, the day watchman usually worked until the night watchman came on duty. On Saturdays, said he, he himself worked, except on rare occasions; and when he did work he let the day watchman go. He couldn't remember more than three or four occasions, said, he, when the day watchman had worked. He let the watchman off as a usual thing that Saturday, said he.

HADN'T SEEN FRY.

He was asked about Walter Fry, a negro employed at the factory. Fry, said he, is one of the oldest negro employes there. He had to clean the third floor of a lot of blue coats one week, and usually he did it on Saturdays. Mr. Frank did not know whether Fry was in the building that day. The watchman said nothing of it, as he should have done had the negro been there. He had not excused Fry from work, said he. He hadn't seen Fry in two weeks, he added.

He caught a Washington street car and got off at Georgia avenue. He got home about 1:20 o'clock. He found his wife and father-in-law and his wife dressed and ready to go to the opera. He told them good-bye and went in and had lunch with the latter's family. Minola, Mr. Frank's servant, waited upon them. They spent about twenty minutes eating. Afterward he lit a cigarette and lay down upon the sofa. He read a little, a chicken fancier, going out in the back yard to look at some chickens. His father-in-law had two young turkeys for sale. It was about noon, for he heard the whistle blow at the time. So far as he knew, there was no one else in the office except Miss Hall left. He said it was customary to copy orders on the day of their receipt. They were seldom more than a day late reaching the writer. It took him probably forty minutes to copy the orders. He didn't begin work more than a minute or two before 12 o'clock. Again he was asked whether he was alone, and answered, "Yes, as far as I know."

MANY QUESTIONS ASKED.

"Did you stop on your way there?" he was asked.

"I don't remember."

"Did you stop on your way back?"

"I don't remember," he again answered.

The coroner asked him to try to refresh him memory. He still insisted that he did not remember stopping at any place, either on his way to or from Montag Brothers.

The coroner kept up his systematic that was not kept boxed and he had to wait a few minutes, he said, while the girl put it in a box for him. He chatted with the girl, he said, but spoke to no one else before he got home.

He reached home about 6:30 o'clock, he said. His father-in-law and the servant were there, the witness said and his wife and his mother came in a few minutes later.

They came in about 6:30, Mr. Frank said, just as he was telephoning to the factory. He phoned at 6:30, he said, because at that time the night watchman was due to be punching the clock and would ordinarily be where he could easily hear the telephone.

Mr. Frank said that he failed to get Lee at 6:30, so telephoned him again at 7 o'clock, when the watchman answered.

The witness said he asked whether Gantt ha gone and if everything was all right, and was told that he was.

Mr. Frank said he had never heard Gantt make any direct threats against him. Gantt had been discharged, the witness said, because of negligence in his accounts.

Mr. Frank said that he telephoned the factory again at 8:30 o'clock, as "a woman I wanted to keep up with when he was in the factory."

The witness said that after supper he smoked and read about 9:30 o'clock, when he went upstairs and lit the gas heater. He then went back downstairs, he said, and read until about 10:30, when he went back upstairs, took a bath and went to bed about 11.

Mr. Frank said he was awakened about 7:30 o'clock Sunday morning by the ringing of the telephone. He answered it in his bath robe, he said, and was Detective J. M. Starnes, who said he wanted Mr. Frank to identify some one at the factory, the witness said.

Mr. Frank said he answered the detective if there had been a fire, and the reply was, "No; a tragedy."

The witness said Mr. Starnes told him an automobile would be right up for him. Detective Black and Boot Rogers arrived before he had finished dressing, Mr. Frank said. He went with them, he said, to Bloomfield's undertaking establishment to see the body of Mary Phagan.

Mr. Frank said that he immediately recognized the "poor little thing." He knew her by her dress, he remarked. "That is the child I paid off Saturday."

Mr. Frank then described the appearance of the corpse, and said that the cord about her neck was of the type used on the third and fourth floors of the pencil factory in binding "units."

GOES TO FACTORY.

He stayed at the undertaker's shop but a few minutes. Then he drove down to the factory and saw Darley going just ahead of him and called to him. Both went upstairs, where he saw the negro and the police detectives. There he was told the details of the tragedy. He took them down to the basement in the elevator. He examined the windows down there to work at first, and Darley started it for him. He didn't see any blood in the basement. He told Darley to pull open the back door which they showed him to be standing open. He said it was part of the watchman's duty to come down in the basement and see that that door was fastened, and also to look in the dust bin. The fire insurance people consider that dust bin somewhat of a hazard, said he. He hadn't been in the cellar a dozen times before during his connection with the company, said he.

He answered a number of questions relative to the method of operating the elevator. It is run by electricity. There is a switch on the first floor, he observed, at the second floor landing where the power is turned off. The switch never is locked up. Formerly it was, but the insurance people objected, and later it was left unlocked where the firemen could get to it immediately and shut off the power in the building.

THE PART OF THE TIME CLOCK.

He was questioned as to the tape on the time clock. When he looked at it first after the tragedy, he thought it was all right because the lines had not been broken. Later, said he, he studied it more closely and saw that the night watchman had skipped in two or three places, punching hours only instead of hours and half hours. He said he had put the tape to the test in advance because he knew when the employes came to work Monday morning they would punch the clock, and test the tape.

While he was in the factory on the Sunday morning after the tragedy was discovered, the detectives used most of the time in looking for a knife, which for some one who might have been hidden. He did not know what machine Mary Phagan was working at when she left the factory, he said. He didn't know of any stuff similar to whitewash used around the plant. There was a yellowish substance, like soap, used for a lubricant.

SAID HE HELPED DETECTIVES.

Leaving the factory that Sunday morning, he went to police headquarters with some of the detectives and Mr. Darley. There he answered a number of questions. He did not remember what they were. He remembered that they all wanted to give the detectives every possible help in getting at the bottom of the thing. He told them everything that they wanted to know, said he.

He and Darley left headquarters together and walked toward town. He asked Darley if he would go to see Mary Phagan's body, and Darley, saying yes, they walked over to the undertaker's. Darley went in, the witness said, because the embalmers were busy at the moment.

WORE THE SAME SUIT.

Questioned as to the clothes he wore on the day preceding the murder's discovery, he declared that he wore the same suit that he wore then, as he testified. He had worn it the next Saturday again, and had worn it constantly since. On the Sunday when the murder was discovered he wore a blue suit.

He answered a number of questions relative to the time he spent in the factory unfamiliar with it could manufacture a time record upon it, he said. He experienced some difficulty himself when he started the clock, he said. There is a key to the time clock, said he, but he didn't even know who had it. It would be locked up by whoever left the clock, to make it register at regular intervals, he thought.

RUNNING THE ELEVATOR.

The coroner reverted to Friday afternoon. He stayed somewhat late that afternoon, he said.

The elevator boy is a negro called "Snowball," he said. He explained again the operation of the elevator. He (Frank) could run the elevator, but he had not done so on any certain occasion that he remembered. On Saturday morning the motor was running, he knew, because it was being used to operate a circular saw in the department where Denham and White were at work.

He said he had never telephoned before Saturday night to the negro night watchman, Newt Lee, because the negro had been there only a couple of weeks. The negro had been employed formerly by Mr. Darley, said he.

Frank said that he identified the girl's corpse by her hair and her features. He didn't know the girl's name, he said, but recognized her corpse as that of the girl he had paid Saturday. Mr. Frank said that he hadn't noticed that the girl appeared nervous when he saw her Saturday afternoon. He wasn't sure he had heard her voice after she left him, he said, but thought he had heard some girl's voice in the outer office.

Mr. Frank said that when he went to the undertaker's establishment Sunday morning, he wore a blue suit he was accustomed to wear on Sundays, having changed from the brown one he had worn the day before. He had never worn this blue suit to the pencil factory th t he remembered, the witness said.

He said that he mentioned to Darley on Sunday that he had on another suit. He changed things from the pocket of the brown suit to the blue one, he said; changed his collar and shirt, and he was accustomed to do. He had never given the night watchman any clothes, he said.

Mr. Frank was asked about his talk with Lee at the police station. He said that previous to his talk with Lee he had been asked by Detectives Black and Scott to try to locate Lee, and had been letting couples into the pencil factory at night.

"Did you say 'Put it strong to him,'" the witness said, 'Try to get out of him all you can. We think he knows more than he is willing to tell. Tell him they've got you and me and they'll send us both to hell if you don't tell what you know.'"

Mr. Frank said that he said to Lee something similar to the words Black had used. "I talked to him kindly," Mr. Frank said. He remembered that he urged Lee to tell the truth about the couples; that he told Lee in substance, "They know you know something," and said, "They can swing us both if you don't tell."

Mr. Frank said that the negro said in substance, "Fore God, Mr. Frank, I don't know anything about it."

Lee declared that he had admitted no couples, Mr. Frank said, and "kept up a good talk."

The witness said that he didn't use the words the detectives told him in which he used the word "hell."

Going back to the talk of the ball games, Mr. Frank said he didn't know what time the games started.

The witness was then quizzed as to how many suits of underwear he had worn, and how often he was accustomed to change.

He had worn one suit last week, he thought, he said. When he took them off he put them in the wash bag, he said. Detective Black saw them, he declared—a suit of winter underwear.

He generally wore two suits of underwear a week during the winter, he said, and four or five a week in the summer.

Going back to the references to the ball game, the witness asked if he had intended going to the ball game after 4 o'clock. He said that he had expected to leave the factory at 1 o'clock.

Mr. Frank said that he had notified the factory employes by posting notices about Monday or Tuesday that they would be paid Friday afternoon, and Saturday was a holiday on account of being Memorial day. They were paid about 5 o'clock Friday afternoon, he said.

Mr. Frank said that during his conversation with Lee the watchman did not accuse him of the crime, or describe the girl's body. He declared that he did not tell Lee not to talk about the tragedy.

Mr. Frank then said that the usual pay time was about noon Saturday.

He replied in answer to a question that he didn't remember ever having used any cord about the factory about the girl's neck to tie a bundle.

"Are you right-handed or left-handed?" he was asked.

"Right-handed," he replied.

Mr. Frank said that he had been in the habit of carrying a pocket knife, but this was taken from him when he was arrested.

The witness repeated his statement that he first heard the telephone on Sunday morning at about 7:30. Later Sunday morning, he said, he thought he recalled dreaming that he heard the telephone in the night.

MR. SELIG ON STAND.

Emil Selig, father-in-law of Mr. Frank, succeeded him on the witness stand. He lives at 68 Georgia avenue, said Mr. Selig. About nine years ago Frank married his daughter. He had never heard of Frank being married before. He had known Frank about a year before Frank married Miss Selig.

In answer to the question, "Do you live with Mr. Frank?" the old gentleman replied, "No; he lives with me."

He didn't remember seeing Frank leave on the morning of the tragedy, but said he did see him at dinner time and ate dinner with him. His wife and daughter both were going to grand opera that night, as well as he remembered, they left before the end of dinner.

After dinner, said Mr. Selig, he (Selig) lay down for a nap. He didn't know what Mr. Frank did. Maybe he lay down, too. Mr. Selig said he got up about 3 o'clock, and Frank was gone. He saw him again at supper. That was between 7 and 8 o'clock, he thought. He didn't remember the exact hour. His wife and daughter and the servants all were there with them, he thought. After supper that Saturday night, Mr. Frank went out into the hall and sat there reading. "We played cards," said he. Asked who "we" was, he replied that they had a little company in that evening.

Asked for the names of the company, he remembered that Mr. and Mrs. Morris Goldstein, Mrs. I. Strauss, who lives on Pryor avenue, and Mrs. Wolfsheimer, from Washington street, and maybe another married daughter, Mrs. A. E. Marcus, were there.

The witness didn't play cards, said he. Mr. Frank must have known that the guests were there. He didn't remember especially about that. They played cards there until about 11 o'clock. Mr. Frank, he presumed, went on up to bed about 9 o'clock. He didn't see anything of him after that. Mrs. Frank didn't play cards, but was out with her husband for a while.

"Who played partners?" the coroner asked him.

"We didn't have any partners," answered the witness. "We were playing for blood."

On Saturday Mr. Frank had on a brown every-day suit, said the witness. He thought he had on the same suit Sunday. It was the same suit he had worn to the inquest, said Mr. Selig.

DIDN'T TALK ABOUT TRAGEDY.

Mr. Selig said that he didn't hear the telephone ring during the night Saturday or Sunday morning. He didn't remember Mr. Frank having telephoned the factory Saturday night, but that Mr. Frank might have done so without his having known it.

Mr. Selig said that he awoke about 8 o'clock Sunday morning, after Mr. Frank had left the house. Mr. Frank told him that "something terrible had happened in the factory," he said, but that he didn't press the question as to what it was, supposing that all day Sunday he made no efforts to find out what had occurred.

Mr. Frank returned home about 10 o'clock, the witness said. Mr. Selig said that he didn't remember Mr. Frank having mentioned the affair during the day.

He said that Mr. Frank had frequently called the factory at night to ask if everything was all right.

MRS. SELIG TESTIFIES.

Mrs. Josephine Selig, wife of Emil Selig and mother-in-law of Mr. Frank, was the witness who succeeded her husband on the stand. She saw Mr. Frank Saturday at dinner, she said. He came to dinner about 1:15 o'clock. She and her husband, Frank and his wife and the cook were there in the house at that time. She and Mrs. Frank left about 1:20 o'clock to go to the opera matinee. She was not sure whether her husband and Mr. Frank went out or not. She saw Mr. Frank again at supper about 6:15 o'clock. He was sitting in the hall, reading a paper, when they came in. They had supper between 6:30 and 6:45 o'clock. Mr. Frank had continued his reading since they came in. She didn't see Mr. Frank use the telephone, but supposed that he might have been upstairs when he used the phone in the dining room. It would not have been unusual for him to telephone, she said.

Mrs. Frank said that when she got up the next morning the first person she saw was her daughter, Mrs. Frank.

Mrs. Frank said Mr. Frank had gone to town, but didn't say why.

About 10 o'clock Mr. Frank came in and told her that some girl had been found dead in the factory. She didn't remember anything else about the conversation.

She didn't attach much importance to it, she said.

Mr. Frank didn't go into details. He mentioned it casually. After a while he sat down and read a paper, she said. She denied that he seemed to be apprehensive.

Questioned again about that part of her testimony, she reiterated that the couple had left to see Mary Phagan's dead was treated casually. Mr. Frank seemed not greatly concerned about it, she said.

All of these statements were made in direct answer to direct questions. Mrs. Selig seemed not to remember very distinctly except that which she answered positively.

Mr. Frank wore a brown suit of clothes on the three days, she said—Saturday, Sunday and Monday. She was positive about this, she said.

Mr. Frank did not mention to her the name of the girl who had been found dead, said she. He owned another suit, of blue, she said. She went into detail about Mr. Frank's laundry bundle, etc.

At 7:20 o'clock the inquest adjourned until 9:30 o'clock Thursday morning.

SAVES ELDERLY PEOPLE FROM KIDNEY AND BLADDER MISERIES

Sleep Disturbing Bladder Weaknesses, Backache, Stiff Joints Rheumatic Pains Disappear After Few Doses are Taken

While people along in years are naturally more subject to weak kidneys, they can avoid the tortures of backache and rheumatism, and be saved the annoyance of getting up at night with disagreeable bladder disorders, for the new discovery, Croxone, quickly relieves the most severe and obstinate cases.

Croxone relieves these conditions by removing the cause. It is the most wonderful remedy ever devised for ridding the system of uric acid. It is entirely different from all other remedies. It is not like anything else ever used for the purpose. Croxone makes the kidneys filter the blood and sift out all the poisonous acids and waste matter that cause these troubles.

It soaks right in and cleans out the stopped up, inactive kidneys like water does a sponge, dissolves, and drives out every particle of uric acid and other poisonous impurities that lodge in the joints and muscles and cause rheumatism. It neutralizes the urine so it no longer irritates the bladder, overcomes unnecessary breaking of sleep and restores the kidneys and bladder to health and strength.

It matters not how long you have suffered, how old you are, or what else you have used, The principle of Croxone is such that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results. It starts to work the minute you take it and relieves you the first time you use it. You can secure an original package of Croxone at trifling cost, and all druggists are authorized to return the purchase price if it fails in a single case. (Advt.)

MAYOR TO VETO COUNCIL ACTION ON GRAFT CHARGES

Says Councilmen Are Not Working for City, but Are Simply Fighting Him

Mayor Woodward will veto the fire probe committee's exoneration of Fire Chief Cummings and the graft probe committee's exoneration of Aldermen Maddox, Ragsdale and Spratling, both of which were adopted by the general council Monday afternoon.

Discussing the reports of the committees, Mayor Woodward Tuesday morning said:

"The fire probe committee's report sustains my charges as to rebates on fire hose and as to the board of fire masters buying an automobile fire apparatus without any authority. But they didn't sustain me because they wanted to. It was because they had to.

"What I don't like about the report, however, is the part exonerating Chief Cummings of R. E. Davidson's charges. Davidson went on the stand and swore to the committee that he gave Bill Cummings a $400 rake-off on the purchase of the automobile fire apparatus for the Ninth ward. He showed the committee the stubs of his check book, where he had drawn out $400 out of the bank to his personal order in April, 1911, and that was the month when the city paid for the engine. Furthermore, he showed the committee the cancelled check corresponding with the stub. Cummings simply denied Davidson's charge.

MAYOR BELIEVES DAVIDSON.

"Therefore it was up to the committee to say which one they believed—Cummings or Davidson. They say they don't believe Davidson. I do. I believe Cummings got the money, and I'm not going to indorse any such a report.

"As to the exoneration of the three aldermen, it's just what I expected. The members of council, and especially the members of the committee that probed the McClelland charges, have known all the facts ever since they happened. They knew that Maddox took subcontracts on city work. They knew Ragsdale was a partner of J. R. Lawhon, who was selling mules to the city. They knew Spratling had borrowed money from city dealers. They've known these things all along. Alderman McClelland's charges weren't news to them. So, I say they couldn't do anything but exonerate.

"They would exonerate anybody. I brought charges against. They're not working after the interests of the city. They're simply fighting me. And any set of council members that will allow their personal feelings to interfere with the city's business are not fit to serve the public. My prediction is that some of them will find themselves in private life when the next election rolls around."

SUBSTANCE OF REPORT.

The reports of the two probe committees were adopted unanimously and without discussion.

The substance of the fire probe committee's report is as follows:

That the board of firemasters, in 1912, did, as the mayor charged, receive bids on an automobile fire apparatus when there was not money in the budget to pay for the same, and did accept the bid of the American LaFrance company, on the strength of which the company shipper the engine to Atlanta. That the fire department has, as the mayor charged, for several years sought supplies without requisition on the comptroler, which the charter requires, and the committee recommended that the fire and all other departments in future obey the charter requirements on this subject. That Chief Cummings, as the mayor charged, has not obtained rebates on fire hose, but in this connection the committee say they believe he has gotten better hose without rebates than former Chief Joyner got with rebates, and has bought considerably less. That the committee do not consider the evidence sufficient to substantiate R. E. Davidson's charge that he gave Chief Cummings $400.

MCLELLAND PROBE REPORT.

The report of the committee which probed the McClelland charges is as follows:

That Alderman Maddox did, as Alderman McClelland charged, perform an excavating subcontract for Chester A. Dady on two sewage disposal plants, and a small excavating subcontract for Nichols Brothers on a sewer. But, Maddox was urged by these contractors to submit a bid on the work, before submitting bids he asked the city attorney if he could legally do the work, the city attorney advised him in writing that he could, and he got the subcontracts by submitting the cheapest bid.

That Alderman Ragsdale is a partner of J. W. Lawhon, as Alderman McClelland charged, but the partnership was formed before Ragsdale came to council and is a limited partnership—Ragsdale, in other words, being the silent partner and having no hand in the buying and selling, which is controlled entirely by Lawhon. That Lawhon had sold mules to the city, but got the contracts on competitive bids under United States government specifications. That Ragsdale several times requested Lawhon not to sell to the city, on account of him (Ragsdale) being in council, to which Lawhon replied that under the terms of the partnership he could sell to whom he pleased. That Ragsdale did not know of the contracts to Lawhon at the time they were awarded and never used his official position to procure them for Lawhon. Incidentally, the committee's report pays Alderman Ragsdale a very high compliment for his integrity and his hard work for the city.

That Alderman Spratling, as Alderman McClelland charged, did borrow money from gentlemen engaged in the beer business, but borrowed it before he was elected or nominated to council. He borrowed it purely on personal grounds, the gentlemen being friends of his for years, and loaning him the money without the suggestion of a promise or hint that he would favor them, as an alderman, in the matter of applications for saloon permits. That Mayor Winn did not promise Alderman Spratling to make him chairman of the police committee of council (which committee controls beer saloon permits), although upon hearing of the loans Mayor Winn did change his mind and leave the alderman off the committee. That council, in the committee's opinion, cannot take cognizance of the loans because they were personal matters.

SOLDIER MEETS DEATH WHEN STRUCK BY TRAIN

John Galivan, a veteran of the Spanish-American war, and a member of the Seventeenth regiment at Fort McPherson, was instantly killed in front of the entrance to the fort Monday evening at 7:30, when he was struck by an inbound passenger train.

The man was a little deaf, and it is believed he was unable to hear the approach of the train. He was hurled some distance, and his neck was broken when he struck the embankment on the side of the track. He was forty-five years of age and was a native of Ireland.

There were no cases made against the crew of the engine

WILSON PROBES CRY OF THE CALAMITY HOWLERS

President Will Not Allow Tariff to Prostrate an Industry, but He Wants Facts

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—President Wilson does not propose to sign a tariff bill that will ruin any particular legitimate industry of the United States, and to guard himself against it he is using all the resources of the government available.

One of the striking examples of this is to be found in an executive order, news of which came out today, for the department of commerce to make an exhaustive examination of the pottery industry of the United States.

The potters of Ohio and New Jersey have assailed the pending tariff bill persistently and bitterly. They even go so far as to charge bad faith on the part of Chairman Underwood in not writing the bill as they understood him to promise to do. Their claims that the bill as it was reported to the house will ruin the pottery industry of the country have been presented to members of both houses of congress and to the White House.

In response to it the president issued a direct order to Secretary of Commerce Redfield to make an investigation forthwith to see if the potters are accurate in their claims. The order directs that not only the books of the potters be examined, but that the entire business be investigated. The potters have offered to throw open their books to the government and the president accepted the offer, with the proviso that everything else connected with the business also must be thrown open.

He believes the great business experience of Secretary Redfield will enable that official to tell in a short time whether the pottery interests are to be hurt by the bill as it stands, and if it will ruin them, then the president will ask that the bill be amended. If congress should decline to amend it the president would not hesitate to veto it, but, of course, that is a contingency too remote to be considered.

Secretary Redfield will work through the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce.

It is admitted that the inquiry is to be searching. All the facts, including those which have been in dispute every time the tariff has been revised, are to be laid bare.

The sincerity of the potters in their claim that Chairman Underwood has caused them to face ruin will be tested to the fullest possible extent, and the work is to be rushed so that the president may have the result in his hands before congress before the tariff bill is passed by both houses.

The order for this investigation caused some surprise among the members of congress when they learned of it today. The point was raised that one set of manufacturers having secured an investigation by executive order, other manufacturers engaged in an entirely different line of business might ask in all justice for a similar order. Such a precedent they said might cause embarrassment, while the Underwood bill was pending in the senate. But when the matter was brought to the attention of the president he pointed to the platform upon which he was elected, and asked what was wrong with what he was doing, in the light of the document.

The intimation that he would insist upon being sure the new tariff act would not bring ruin to any industry before he would sign it was the first hint any of the members of congress had that the president was making an independent investigation in doubtful cases.

But when the president was asked about it, he frankly said he was using all the machinery of the government at his disposal to make certain that the platform pledge not to prostrate an industry, was carried out.

PORTUGUESE PRISONERS SENT AWAY FOR TRIAL

200 Political Prisoners Sent to Terceira Island for Trial of Revolt

(By Associated Press.)

LISBON, May 6.—The Portuguese government has dispatched political prisoners arrested for complicity in the last attempt to overthrow the republic on April 27 to the Azores for trial and punishment.

About 200 of the prisoners were marched at dawn yesterday on board the steamer Cabo Verde, which sailed at once bound for Terceira island, where accused are to be courtmartialed in the fortress of Angra, capital of the island.

The Portuguese premier was questioned last night in parliament on the subject, and replied that the prisoners had been sent to Angra under the provisions of the law giving the government the right to choose any place for the trial of political prisoners.

Families of the accused are terrified by the steps taken by the government, and express fear as to what may happen to their relatives when they arrive on the remote island and are placed in the secluded stronghold.

The riots on April 27, in which the prisoners were implicated were started by the ultra Republicans. They gathered in groups before the barracks of Lisbon, fired revolvers, exploded small bombs and cheered for "the radical republic."

RADCLIFF IS DEAD; WIFE UNDER ARREST

(By Associated Press.)

COLUMBUS, Ga., May 6.—George Radcliff, a prominent merchant of Columbus, died at a local hospital Monday night from bullet wounds inflicted by an unknown person two weeks ago. Radcliff, who was shot as he was leaving his store in the downtown section, is said to have declared that he was ignorant of the identity of his assailant.

Mrs. Radcliff, who was arrested on suspicion immediately after the attack upon her husband, is still held at the county jail here. She denies knowledge of the incident.

AMERICAN FASHIONS

By Lillian Young.

Nets and laces, instead of appearing merely as trimming, are now being used for entire dresses or for dress tunics, and, when combined with a pale satin, the effect is charmingly soft and youthful. It will not be possible to use more than the simplest method of draping in these delicate lacy frocks, but after all the simpler draping looks best, and a most effective method is followed in the dress of the sketch.

The foundation dress consists of a skirt of blue crepe meteor gathered at the waist and opening down one side with the front edge turned under, draped a little and rounded away just above the instep in front. The under blouse is of white chiffon, cut with a higher neck and long sleeves than the tunic, so as to form soft finishing edges. The blue crepe meteor is continued above the belt in a straight line, covering the chiffon under blouse just below the bust.

The tunic is made of Chantilly net, with rows of fine lace insertion running lengthwise for trimming. The blouse part is surpliced and draped under the left side of the bust by a line of gathers covered with a row of small pink roses. The sleeves, too, are outlined with roses, and there is a girdle of silver gauze about the waist. The skirt part is gathered slightly at the belt, and extends some ten or twelve inches below the hips. It consists of an under part of white chiffon and the over part of Chantilly. The draping of the chantilly is so arranged that the left side is considerably shorter than the right, but the space is filled in by the plain chiffon under part, which hangs evenly with the right side. Roses trim the edges. Probably the most natural and effective roses to use for the purpose are the small silk or muslin ones that come in bunches in the millinery department, and incidentally they are the least expensive.

The rooms were decorated throughout with quantities of daisies.

In the dining room a great wicker basket holding an artistic arrangement of daisies and fern formed the center of the luncheon table, the place cards were painted with daisies and the minor details of the prettily appointed table continued a color scheme of green and white.

Mrs. Troutman was costumed in a gown of white embroidered linen.

The trophy for top score was a piece of embroidered crepe lingerie, the consolation prize was a fan, and the guest of honor was presented a French fan as a souvenir of the occasion.

THE GIRL FROM RIGHT HERE IN "THE GIRL FROM OUT YONDER"

Smiling above an armful of flowers and flowers all about her, Miss Agnes Tinsley Harrison bowed her pretty head in response to the curtain call which brought her before the footlights at the end of the second act in "The Girl from Out Yonder."

In her dressing room the young Atlanta girl was not thinking of the ordeal of a first night in her home town, but all aflutter with a girl's keen interest in the cards which were fastened to the great bouquets and baskets which had greeted her initial appearance.

There was no use playing we had never met and that the few minutes were to be used in regular interview fashion. There were pink roses to be hurriedly pulled from one big bouquet and pinned to the blue girdle of the quaint little frock worn by the young actress; there was also a touch of carmine to be given the smiling lips, from which rounded ohs and ahs were falling at the beauty and sweetness of the fragrant blossoms, and finally, "Oh, isn't Atlanta the dearest place in the world, and isn't it lovely of one's friends to behave like this? I think they are just grand."

"But, weren't you really dreadfully nervous about playing in Atlanta?"—the first chance of a real interviewish question.

"Well, I always said I wanted to play five years before I ever came to Atlanta, but it was more because Atlanta is always so kind that I felt as if I would like more impartial criticism and that, too, I would by that time have more to interest them. At least I hope I will," she added, a touch of earnestness showing in the clear voice, which is one of her stage assets, an earnestness which seems to recognize that a career means hard work, self-denial, determination and all the other things that go before as well as hand in hand with success.

"I'm sorry you haven't a nicer part," to which Miss Harrison assented, "Yes; isn't she a snippy, hateful thing; but she's better in the third act."

"How did you happen to take the name of Marjorie Mason?"

"On the spur of the moment. Mr. Vail asked me what name, and when I understood it was for the program Marjorie Mason just popped into my head without rhyme or reason. I would have given my own name, but I thought perhaps, with the make-up, nobody would know me. I don't know how it got out, but it did, and I'm not sorry, for people have been so lovely and so kind."

"Do you think you will keep Marjorie Mason?"

"I don't think so. I think I will use my own name," and so the next time Atlanta audiences and friends, perhaps, in other places will not be seeing Marjorie Mason in "The Girl from Out Yonder," but will be seeing and listening to Tinsley Harrison—the little girl from right here—on her way to a big future, carrying with her always the interest of her home people.

"The Girl from Out Yonder" is a play full of interest and sentiment, and the leading role is splendidly portrayed by Miss Billy Long, who is winning a host of friends by her clever work and charming personality.

Bell-Dennis

EATONTON, Ga., May 6.—Taking his family and a host of friends entirely by surprise, former legislator John T. Dennis, one of Putnam's best known and most successful agriculturists, has just returned to his home, "Glen Dennis," with his bride, formerly Miss Rebecca Miles Bell, of Aiken, S. C. Last summer the bride's mother, after reading an interesting article by Mr. Dennis, in the Progressive Farmer, wrote him in regard to some further facts as to the successful carrying out of his ideas, in regard to the conduct of a dairy. Mr. Dennis very cordially invited her to come over and visit his farm, which she did, bringing with her her daughter.

Mrs. Dennis is a member of a very prominent South Carolina family, her father one of the largest landholders around Aiken, and a man prominent in the legislative affairs of the Palmetto State. Many of her family are graduates of Yale and Wellesley and the University of South Carolina. She is a young woman of exceptionally lovely qualities and character.

Mr. Dennis is president of the Putnam County Fair association and a former Georgia legislator.

G. H. S. Alumnae Scholarship Election

Between the hours of 2 and 5 o'clock on Thursday, May 8, the members of the Girls' High School Alumnae association will vote for the Agnes Scott scholarship student.

The voting will take place in the music room of the school and all members whose dues of $1 are paid are entitled to cast a vote. Proxies must be in writing. No telephone votes allowed.

At 4 o'clock of the same afternoon there will be held a called meeting of the board of directors for the purpose of transacting some important business of the association, including the election of fellowship student for the summer course. Composing the board of directors are the officers of the association, the executive committee, and the faculty of the Girls' High school.

The annual reunion of the alumnae, which has heretofore been held in the spring, has been deferred until the autumn and will be held early in October.

The plan of a course of study for the members of the association, outlined at the meeting of the class chairmen at the home of the president last week will be discussed by the directors at their meeting on Thursday afternoon and given definite shape. This plan provides for a series of autumn and winter meetings in which the members shall make a study of some phase of literature or sociology, as may be decided, the course to be preparatory to the spring lectures to be given by Edward Howard Griggs.

So many expressions of approval of this idea have come from the members, that it is not unlikely that the plan will be favorably acted upon.

If any member desires to vote in Thursday's election, and has not paid her dues, she is requested to send her dollar to Miss Mattie Slaton, at the Girls' High school at once.

The young ladies who are applicants for the Agnes Scott college scholarship are:

Miss Jeannette Victor, Miss Isabel Dew, Miss Frances Anderson, Miss May Robinson.

HAPPENINGS IN LONDONTOWN

LONDON, May 6.—King George, accompanied by Queen Mary, opened the third session of the thirtieth parliament. In spite of the dull and threatening weather, a large crowd assembled all along the route, and gave their majesties a right royal welcome. In the house of lords itself a brilliant throng surrounded the king and queen. After the reading of the speech from the throne their Majesties returned to Buckingham Palace.

The old state carriage is a magnificent vehicle. Designed in 1760 by Sir William Chambers for King George III, it cost over $35,000. The body of the coach is profusely ornamented with carved work, eight palm trees branching out to the top and supporting the roof. This is surmounted by three youths, representing England, Scotland and Ireland, who bear the sceptre, the sword of state, and the insignia of knighthood. The crown of the United Kingdom is supported on their shoulders, and festoons of laurel fall from their bodies to the four corners of the roof, each corner being finished with a lion's head. The body of the carriage is attached to the under part by four straps or braces covered with red Morocco leather, the massive buckles being heavily gilded. These braces are held by four Tritons, two at the front and two at the back. The first pair seem to be drawing the body of the coach by cables, which pass round their shoulders, and they blow conches. In this way did the designer typify that Britannia rules the waves. The driver's seat is covered by a magnificent hammer-cloth ornamented with gold bullion, and the footboard is a huge escallop shell. The spokes and felloes form a volute center, the ends of which represent dolphins' heads. The panels were painted by Cipriani, are in excellent condition. Except these, every part of this huge vehicle, which weighs four tons, and is nearly 12 1-2 feet high, is heavily gilded.

The queen fulfilled her promise of visiting the exhibition of English handmade lace, and drove to the Mansion House, attended by Lady Airlie and Mr. E. W. Wallington. The lord mayor and lady mayoress received her majesty at the Walbrook entrance, and conducted her to the saloon, where the sheriffs of Lincolnshire, Lady Truscott, and various ladies connected with the promotion of the lace-making industry were presented to her. Then Queen Mary devoted an hour to inspecting the exhibits, which interested her extremely, and often called forth expressions of admiration. The wedding veil of pillow lace, which has been made in Buckinghamshire by the various women working separately, and is the largest piece of lace ever thus produced on the pillow, attracted her particular attention, and she gave an order for a selection of Bucks' edgings to be sent to her. A beautiful scarf of Honiton, made especially for the association, was particularly noticed by her majesty for its exquisite design, and a hand-made net fan, worked at Diss, by the Norfolk lace makers, was also much praised by her. She bought a lovely lappet, worked on the vrale reseau ground at the Devon. Finally the queen was repaired with the lord and lady mayoress to one of the dining rooms, where tea was served to her majesty before she went away.

* * *

To the loan collection, which was one of the interesting features of the exhibition, Queen Mary contributed many valuable specimens from her own stores of beautiful laces—a Honiton lappet handkerchief which was one of the coronation gifts, and was used by her at the rite, and another of Honiton pillow lace, which the late Duchess of Teck used at her marriage. Some very choice fans were also lent by her majesty, including the one offered by the Fan-makers' company to her at the coronation, and two that were made by her own command, when Princess of Wales, for the St. Louis exhibition in 1904, and the one held at Melbourne three years later.

The Prince of Wales is to set up as a farming landlord upon his own Cornish estates. His bailiff has been purchasing some pedigree stock, to form the nucleus of the experimental herd from which his royal highness means to breed for the encouragement of the nation's agriculture. For the present the new royal farm will concern itself chiefly with the breeding of draught horses and Shorthorn beasts. Hunters and hacks are not so important a branch of horse breeding in the Twentieth century as the Prince's father and the princely farmer has a keen eye for the future in this respect.

The gossips are saying that the prince intends to compete with his augus father at the stock shows, and to attempt to wrest from the king some of the honors which have hitherto gone to the Windsor and Sandringham farms. This, as the lads in Mr. Euclid used to observe, is absurd. His majesty does not exhibit shire horses at all, and it will be many a day before the Corning Lord will go so far afield as the shows in the eastern counties. Smithfield, again, is meant for fat stock, and at present the prince is limiting his interests to breeding, and does not contemplate the raising of fat stock.

His royal highness will go down west as soon as possible to see how the farm is getting on. He is also to travel to Bristol with the king in July. In order to see the Royal Agricultural shop, and will pick up some wrinkles for the benefit of his own enterprises. Later on there will be some royal exhibits at the Bath and West of England show. But it would be out of place for anything to be done in the name of the prince this season, because the herd will not have been in his posession long enough to justify their merits being claimed as the work of his own farm.

Owing to the retirement of Sir Arthur Wynne, a new keeper of the crown jewels will have to be found. The office, though one of great responsibility, has now comparatively few duties attached to it. Formerly, however, the keeper of the jewels had plenty of work to do, and it was above all things necessary that he should be a man of great discretion. Our earlier monarchs not infrequently found it necessary or desirable to pawn some or all of the regalia, and in such a case it was, of course, the keeper who effected the transaction. In one instance, when Richard II. was particularly "hard up," it was the Corporation of the City of London who found the money and acted as pawnbrokers for the occasion. But it was usual for the adopted "uncle" to be some private individual whose secrecy could be fairly well relied on. During the commonwealth the office of keeper of the crown jewels naturally fell into abeyance, and the jewels themselves were mostly sold. Hardly had a new set been made for Charles II. when an attempt was made to steal them, but unsuccessfully, and the would-be thief was incarcerated—a tantalus-like punishment—in the tower, where the jewels themselves were housed.

A prominent city financier, who has many friends in diplomatic circles, is said to have made the strong avowal that there would be war between France and Germany within six months. The optimistic friends of France freely boast that in an artillery duel, which is largely what modern warfare will resolve itself into, Germany will be outclassed by her rival. It will be scientific skill, and not numbers, which will count.

THE EVENING STORY

(Copyright, 1913, by W. Werner.)

SHIFTLESS ESTELLE

Howard Guthrie frowned as he came into the house that evening and looked at its disheveled condition. Papers and magazines were strewn about, one of Estelle's slippers stood in the front hall, hairpins littered the library table, and a pair of white kid gloves perked themselves on the sideboard.

"Hurry!" called Estelle, sticking a pretty pink face from the bath room; eat your dinner and get dressed. Mother sent us tickets for the grand opera. I've eaten mine; yours is in the gas oven."

It was with a distinct sense of injury that he got his dinner and ate it. Afterward he glumly began to look for his evening clothes. He could not understand why they couldn't eat dinner in a civilized fashion and then dress early; instead of this helter-skelter way that Estelle chose. There were many of Estelle's ways which Howard had grown to dislike in the two years of married life; her feverish house cleaning three days in the week, and her slack, cheerful attitude toward dust and littered floors the other four. Sometimes she cooked meals that were the acme of delight; sometimes she brought in a spread from a musty delicatessen shop. And she airily overbore Howard's complaint about irregularity.

"Slush!" she said gayly. "You take life too hard, my boy. Just slide along, and grab a good time when you can. It's the best way!"

Howard forgot his original grievance—that his socks had never been sorted and mended since last laundry day—and scowled over her inelegant language. Howard's great grandfather was a canny, precise old Scotchman; Howard was enough like him to be always annoyed by Estelle's foolish ways. But Estelle had a skin like pink and white rose petals, she had crinkly yellow hair and eyes like lovely purple violets, and she was always laughing or ready to. Sometimes when Howard had a speech prepared that would inform her just what he thought of her, her violet eyes twinkled up at him and he forgot his disapproval and thought exultantly what a lucky man he was.

But tonight he was tired and disapproval had the whip hand. He looked at her crossly when she ran down after two hours of frantic preparation—preparation that left the house a tumbled mass of finery, with powder boxes, hairpins, combs, brushes, towels. Estelle never stayed in one room to dress; she never could find all her belongings in one, owing to previous scattering.

Estelle, perfectly conscious that she looked all right, did not notice his cold glance. Any kind of pleasure excited her, and grand opera was an intoxicant. She tripped along gayly, humming a snatch of the last five women working separately, and is the largest piece of lace ever thus produced on the pillow, attracted her particular attention, and she gave an order for a selection of Bucks' edgings to be sent to her. A beautiful scarf of Honiton, made especially for the association, was particularly noticed by her majesty for its exquisite design, and a hand-made net fan, worked at Diss, by the Norfolk lace makers, was also much praised by her. Talked and Smoked.

to. But he wished strongly that Estelle was—well, different. One had an intuitive conviction that the Murchkins menage moved smoothly always; that meals were on time; that the contents of chiffoniers and closets were arranged neatly, not tossed in haphazard; that the silverware was polished regularly, not rushed at feverishly when company was on the way. And his eyes filled with a hard light at thought of Estelle's slack ways.

After dinner Murchkins took him into the library and they talked and smoked. When fifteen minutes had passed Harvey suddenly became conscious that there was a strained note to Murchkins' conversation. The joviality that marked him down in the office was not evident.

Presently Mrs. Murchkins came in. Just at that moment Murchkins let the ash of his cigar fall upon the polished top of the table at which he sat. He mumbled an apology and Mrs. Murchkins hastily brushed the white flakes into the ash receiver. Harvey looked up in time to catch the glare that she shot at her husband, and he had a moment's discomfort. But he didn't blame her. He, too, liked tidiness. Murchkins had no business to drop the ash when a receptacle stood near.

In a moment Murchkins began to look for a magazine. There was an article that he wanted to show Harvey. It was not on the table or in the rack. "I thought I left it right here," he said regretfully.

"So you did," snapped Mrs. Murchkins, and her icy tone this time made Harvey distinctly uncomfortable. "And I put it away. You know perfectly well that last month's magazines are always found on the third shelf in the closet of the hall. What would the house look like if they were left about?"

Murchkins silently got up and went in search of it. There was a distant crash. Mrs. Murchkins sat upright in her chair. Harvey almost shivered—her glance toward the door that Murchkins had passed through was so significant and shrewish.

Murchkins came in awkwardly. "I'm sorry," he murmured abjectly. "I knocked a heap of stuff down. The light was out of working order—"

"Oh, any excuse," snapped Mrs. Murchkins. "Did you ever go into a room or a closet that you didn't knock something down? I can work myself to a skeleton trying to keep a house clean, and what do you care?"

She flounced out, presumably to restore the articles that Murchkins had knocked over. Her husband sat in gloomy silence. There was an expression akin to fright in his face. Finally he looked up abashed and met Harvey's gaze.

"Women have their crotchets," he observed sadly. "I daresay you sometimes get jumped on at home. I hope," devoutly, "that Mrs. Guthrie isn't quite so orderly."

A word of pathos lay in the would-be jocular remark. A bit of dull red crept into Harvey's cheeks as he remembered his former harsh judgment of Estelle—frivolous Estelle. But, after all, what a comfortable person she was. One never had to worry about trifles. He gave mental thanks that Mrs. Murchkins did not keep his home in order.

"She isn't," he told Murchkins triumphantly. "She's what you call disorderly."

"How lucky you are," sighed Murchkins enviously.

Little Stories for Bedtime

By Thornton W. Burgess.

(Copyrighted, 1913, by J. G. Lloyd.)

The smartest folks will sometimes find
That other folks are quite as smart,
And so their little tricks all fail—
They simply play a foolish part.

Unc' Billy Possum was beginning to have an idea that that was just the case with him. When Farmer Brown's boy found him up in the haymow Unc' Billy just pretended that he was dead. Yes, sir, he pretended that he was dead. He didn't move so much as an eyelash when Farmer Brown's Boy picked him up by the back of the neck. He hung as limp as if there wasn't a breath of life in him when Farmer Bown's boy swung him by the tail and climbed down from the haymow with him. When Farmer Brown's Boy dropped him, with a thump on the barn floor Unc' Billy didn't even grunt, though he wanted to, for it shook him all over. But he didn't. He lay perfectly still just as he fell. Farmer Brown's boy pinched Unc' Billy's tail, pinched it hard. It hurt dreadfully, but still Unc' Bily didn't move.

By and by Farmer Brown's boy pretended to go away, leaving Unc' Billy on the barn floor. What he really did do was to hide behind a barrel close by, where he could watch Unc' Billy. After eveything had been perfectly still for a long time Unc' Billy very, very slowly opened one of his sharp eyes. He didn't open it wide, but just so that he could peep out from under the lids. He could see those barrels, and sticking out from behind one of them something that looked to him very much like the toe of a shoe. Unc' Billy slowly closed his eye again and inside he grinned.

"Yo' don't catch this possum that way, Mistah Boy!" said he to himself, and took care not to move.

Finally Farmer Brown's boy gave up. He came out from behind the barrels, and his freckled face wore a broad grin as he stood looking down at Unc' Billy.

"You certainly are a smart old possum, but you are just fooling yourself if you think you are fooling me," said he. "You're just as much alive as you was when you sucked those eggs up there in the hay. I'll just have Bowser watch you while I fix a place to keep you. No, sir; you can't fool me for a minute, Mr. Possum! You did it once a long time ago, but your little trick won't work this time."

Then he whistled for Bowser the Hound and told him to watch Unc' Billy, but not to touch him unless Unc' Billy tried to get away. Bowser sniffed at Unc' Billy and growled way down deep in his throat in a way to send a queer prickly feeling all over Unc' Billy. Then he sat down cose to Unc' Billy, while Farmer Brown's boy went away. Unc' Billy didn't move. You see, Bowser the Hound kept growling deep down in his throat.

After what seemed to Unc' Billy a very long time, Farmer Brown's boy came back bringing a wire-covered box. It was just like the one in which Johnny Chuck's lost baby was a prisoner. Farmer Brown's boy picked Unc' Billy up by the tail land dropped him into the box and fastened the little door through which he had dropped him. Then Unc' Billy came to life. You see he knew that it was of no use to pretend any longer that he was dead. So he yawned and stretched and said:

Farmer Brown's boy laughed.

EST. 1870 TRADE MARK HAWKES GLASSES

THE DAY OF SPECIALISTS

There recently appeared in an Atlanta paper a splendid editorial on the "Powers of Concentration." It told of the wonderful things that can be accomplished by sticking to one thing—to a finish; and you know it to be true—that if you start out to do a thing backed by courage and determination, you'll get it done, and when you get it done you'll be a specialist—at that one thing.

We've been sticking to one thing for fifty years; plugging along, studying and learning every point that would add to our efficiency as Opticians. For fifty years we have been examining Eyes and fitting glasses and we are pretty sure we are able to properly handle the most difficult cases requiring the use of glasses. You get the direct benefit of all these years of experience. Come in and talk to us about your eyes.

"To correct faulty complexion, sallowness, pimples or blotches, dissolve an original package of mayatone in a half pint of witch hazel, and cover the face, neck and arms with this solution every morning. It takes the place of powder and makes the skin soft, lovely, smooth and satiny.

"Dull, dead and falling hair—the forerunners of baldness—are caused by a parasite. To keep the hair healthy and beautiful you must kill the parasite that destroys the hair. Mother's Shampoo does this. It leaves the scalp fresh, clean and wholesome and makes the hair fluffy and fine. A supply for many months costs only 25 cents at your druggist's.

"Persons troubled with superfluous hair on face or forearms can quickly and safely remove the humiliating growth with delatone. Make a paste by mixing powdered delatone with water; cover the hairs for two or three minutes; then remove, wash the skin, and the hairs will be gone.

"Spring colds are prevalent. The world never saw the equal of Mother's Salve as a remedy for coughs, colds in the head or chest, catarrh and sore throat. It is easy to use and quick to act. Mother's Salve is sold in prepared form in every neighborhood."—(Advt.)

As to the Merits of Cardui, the Woman's Tonic, in View of Such Evidence

Tecumseh, Okla.—In a letter from this town, Mrs. Elisa Epperson, says: "I do believe, that if it hadn't been for Cardui, the woman's tonic, I wouldn't have been living today.

I am so glad that I began taking Cardui, when I did. Before I began using it, I was in bad health and suffered considerable pain in head, shoulders, back, side, limbs and lower part of my body.

Cardui helped me more than anything I ever did take, and I am in better health since taking it, than I have been in four (4) years.

I shall never be without Cardui, the woman's tonic, in my home, and will always recommend it to other ladies."

Can you doubt the merit of Cardui after reading the above letter? This is only one of many that we receive each year. Such testimony, from earnest women, surely proves the great value of this tonic medicine, for the ailments peculiar to their sex.

Cardui acts on the weakened womanly organs. It helps to refresh the wornout nerves, and is the ideal medicine for young and old.

As a tonic for women, it has brought remarkable results.

As a remedy for women's ills, its friends say it has no equal.

George Rohe, Ex-Pelican, Signed as Utility for Atlanta

ROHE IS UTILITY MAN; ON HUNT FOR PITCHERS

Manager Smith Not Satisfied With His Hurling Staff and Wants Two or Three New Men—Team Has Scored Often in Games With Mobile, and Yet Has Not Been Able to Win a Game—Good Pitchers Are Now Hard to Find

George Rohe, the veteran of a score of campaigns and the hero of one world's series, has been signed as utility man for the Atlanta club and will make his debut in right field with the team in the game at Mobile Tuesday afternoon. With the signing of Rohe, Manager Smith turned back Kernan, who had only rejoined the club Monday morning. It is believed that the signing of Rohe is only temporary, it being Manager Smith's wish to land a promising youngster for utility work.

With the utility man signed, the matter now worrying Manager Smith is his pitching corps. He is crying for hurlers who can hold the opposing club to a few hits and at the same time not give up so many free tickets to first base. Walking the batsmen has been one of the greatest faults with the corps this season and now Manager Smith has decided to strengthen in case he can find two or three first-class men.

In the series in Mobile four twirlers have been used in the two games and not one of the four has shown any especial class. Weaver did fairly well, while Musser was both wild and hit hard. Price was pounded unmercifully in his workout Monday, while Bausewein has yet to locate the plate. This leaves only Brady to work and the old reliable may be able to turn the trick.

The failure of Musser and Bausewein to deliver is a bit puzzling. Both have an abundance of the puzzle stuff but are unable to get it over the pan. They have been losing games owing to their failure to locate the plate. With this setback removed they should be good. With Price there is no trouble. He has been pitching jam up ball and just because he was hit hard Monday by Mobile is no cause for his release or relegation to the minors. Everyone receives his bumps once in a while. Buck Weaver has suffered a sore arm and has not worked lately while Brady is going along in his old reliable manner.

All this bowl about more pitchers is probably a bit premature. Just because a hurler does not win every game is no reason for his release. You can't expect every hurler to win each game he twirls. The other clubs must be given some credit for good batting. If all the Cracker pitchers were able to pitch shutout ball in every game they probably would not be in the Southern league but winning games for Connie Mack or John McGraw. It is true the slabbers have been going a bit badly but at that it is best to go slow in making changes and be sure of the men you substitute.

It is all right to pick up a few new hurlers but at that it is best to go decidedly slow and not hang to several old worn out men who have served their time in the big ring and are coming back to draw a pension.

Three Homers Copped Battle From Atlanta

Bausewein, Musser and Price All Easy, Bausewein's Biggest Weakness Being Inability to Locate Plate

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

MOBILE, Ala., May 6.—The Gulls garnered eleven hits yesterday for a total of twenty-one bases; the Crackers registered eleven bingles for a total of seventeen bases. The Gulls got ten bases on balls, the Crackers one. Atlanta had eight men left on bases, Mobile ten. Three sacks were stolen by Gull runners, none by the Crackers. Atlanta used three pitchers, Mobile one. The score was 10 to 6.

So run the figures on the battle, which was a regular rout. It was a case of nobody there in the box for Atlanta. Bausewein, who started the game, was wild as a fiddler, Musser was batted for five scores in three innings and walked four men, and Gilbert Price, alleged star hurler of the Smithies, was buffeted and biffeted from pillar to post, and then some.

Win Campbell, alleged the poorest pitcher on the local club, allowed himself to be hammered equally as hard as his opponents in the pit, but the hits were not as long, they came not as frequent, and however you make it, they didn't bring across the tallies.

Bausewein began by walking the first three men to face him in the first inning, when Smith jerked him to the bench and sent in Musser. The blond boy was hit safely three times, one a home run by Robertson, which scored two men ahead of him. Musser was yanked in the fourth and Price relieved him.

The slaughter then assumed gigantic proportions. With two men out in that inning, singles by Clark, Robertson, Paulet and Schmidt, coupled with a stolen base and Long's error, gave the Gulls three runs.

Homers by Jacobson and Robertsen in the sixth gave a brace of tallies to Mobile.

Atlanta scored in the first, third and sixth. O'Dell's error, Alperman's single, Smith's safety to left and Bisland's triple gave the visitors three in the first. Bisland's second three-ply smash and Kernan's single gave Atlanta another run in the third. Long's single, Stock's error, and Alperman's double gave the Crackers two in the sixth

IN THE SPORTLIGHT By Grantland Rice

THE OLD, OLD SPIEL.

(As Kingley Probably Meant It in the First Place.)

When all the Game is young, pal,
The Old pep, running high;
When speed is on the hoof, pal,
And baschits in the eye;
The hey for sheer and shout, pal,
And round the field away,
Young blood must have its clout, lad,
And every Cobb his day.

When all the game is old, pal,
And gray adorns the crown;
When all the sport is stale, pal,
And pitching arms run down;
Creep to the bush as near there,
The spent and dubs among;
God grant you find one cheer there
You heard when you were young.

BENDER AND UNPERTURBED.

If there is one cool, even tempered citizen under fire connected with the National hip-hip, the name belongs to Chief C. Albert Bender of the Mackien Avalanche.

Bender possesses the rare temperament necessary to best effort in close quarters where a flutter either way means disaster. The Indian doesn't know what it means to give vent to any duck fits, however ebullient the situation at the time.

IN OTHER LINES.

This temperament is natural. It doesn't apply to baseball alone. A day or two ago we took the Chief over an 18-hole golf battle where he gave an exhibition in more ways than club swinging as to how the Scottish pastime should be played.

To begin with Bender is a firstclass golfer. He has a free, clean swing, framed according to all the laws of form. He uses the orthodox Vardon grip, comes through a smashing wallop and gets a world of distance both with the wood and irons. If he were able to play steadily his game would soon be knocked down to eighty or under, which is fair enough golf for any one to shot.

THE RIGHT TEMPERAMENT.

Above even his ability to swing a club properly, Bender has the finest golfing temperament we have ever seen. No break of the game ever upsets his phlegmatic nerve. He takes the game as comes without either an alibi or a protest. A bad "lie" brings no complaint—although it may follow a perfect shot down the course. It is this feature which would soon make him a fine golfer even above his physical requirements.

On two occasions, not knowing the course, two apparently well played shots found him in two deeply trapped bunkers, but no squawk followed. In each case he played out perfectly, keeping his head down and his mind on the shot impression upon him that if he had thumped one dead against the pin.

This feature of Bender's nature has helped make him the wonderful pitcher he has always been. The greater the emergency, the cooler and steadier he seems to be. His arm is now in fine shape again, so Mack has the right man to stick in where trouble threatens in a close game and where a cool nerve is required to meet the situation.

We'd like to see a man of Bender's physical and mental nerve equipment given a good chance at golf, which he esteems even above his own profession. It isn't unlikely that within a year or two he would be rated as one of the crack players of the country—for like Jerry Travers the harder the match and the tighter the situation, the better he would be in every case.

Bender now could give a wonderful lesson in golf to any beginner and to many advanced players. Not so much in the way of grip and swing as in the control of temperament—and the lack of perturbation after a bad shot or a break of bad luck. "It's all in the game," he figures, "whatever happens, why not take it as it comes?" If you can beat that philosophy we'd like to have the answer.

COBB AN INCOMPARABLE PLAYER, DECLARES MANAGER JENNINGS

"If Ever Another of the Same Class Is Found It Will Certainly Be an Exception," Says Tiger Leader

DETROIT, Mich., May 6.—It is the opinion of Hugh Jennings, manager of the Detroit team, that the base runners of today are, for the most part, far inferior to the base runners of the time when McGraw, Keeler, Kelley, Hanlon and Long were in the game.

"Baseball, as a game, has made wonderful strides in the past ten or twenty years," says Hugh, "but the player of today—I am speaking in general terms—is far the inferior of the player of yesterday when base running is considered. There are faster men—that is, more faster men—but there are not nearly so many good base runners for the reason that players of today do not extend themselves along this line.

"The good base runners of the two major leagues can be counted on your fingers—almost on the fingers of one hand. Consider Cobb, Milan, Bescher, Bush and one or two others, perhaps, and the remaining players in the big leagues are let out. Ten or twenty years ago there were lots of men who were good on the paths.

"It is my opinion that baseball will show its greatest improvement in future years, as men develop as base stealers. Stealing bases is not a natural ability. It is acquired. Up to a year or so ago Clyde Milan, of the Washington team, was an ordinary man on the paths, but Milan saw the advantage of cultivating his speed and learning when to take chances. Now he is one of the best base runners in the game.

"I do not consider Eddie Collins an exceptional or a very dangerous man when it comes to running bases. Collins has not developed himself sufficiently in the fadeaway slide, and until he gets that properly he will not cause opposing teams any undue alarm when he gets on the sacks.

"I do not believe that there is much chance for improvement along other lines. It is hardly possible that there will ever be a player the superior of Cobb. In fact, if Cobb's equal is found it will be an exception. Cobb is without a weakness as a player, and this is something that cannot be said of any other player in the game. Ty, however, had shortcomings when he broke into baseball, but he had sense enough to realize them and willingness enough to work to overcome them. That is why he is the greatest player.

"Every baseball follower in the country knows how, a few years ago, Cobb was a cinch for Doc White, the Chicago pitcher. White knew Cobb had a weakness at the bat, and White preyed on it. Cobb knew the situation as well as did White, and after months of faithful hitting against a certain kind of pitched ball Cobb overcame his weakness, and White can trick Cobb no more.

"When other players begin to realize their faults and try faithfully to overcome them, then, and then only, will baseball be advanced."

Ball Ground Beats

BALL GROUND, Ga., May 6.—The Ball Ground baseball team journeyed down to Canton Saturday evening and unmercifully defeated a selection of the best six of several towns and cities of north Georgia by the score of 6 to 4.

Aaron, Ball Ground's unmatchable southpaw, had the Canton bunch eating out of his hand all the game, and fanned just fifteen stars, playing jamup ball himself.

EIGHT NAGS FOR DERBY

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 6.—It was regarded as certain here today that the renewal of the Kentucky Derby classic, May 10, would see at least eight starters at the barrier, the largest Derby field since 1909, when ten three-year-olds went to the post.

The horses regarded as certain starters and their owners are:

Ten Point,, A. L. Astee.
Foundation, C. W. McKenna.
Leochares, J. W. Schorr.
Yankee Notion, H. K. Knapp.
Lord Marshall, J. O. and H. H. Keene.
Donerail, T. P. Hayes.
Prince Hermis, Lew Marion.
Jimmy Gill, owned by Doerhoefer and West.

It was still uncertain today whether C. F. Bushemeyer's Hawthorn, mentioned as a prominent contender, would start, although the announcement was made from the Lexington stables, where the horse has been sick for several days, that he had completely recovered.

With eight starters, the Derby would be worth $5,475 to the winner.

Travers vs. Travers

NEW YORK, May 6.—A golf match of unusual interest is being arranged for next week when Jerome D. Travers and Oswald Kirkby will meet Fred Herreshoff and Walter J. Travis in a four-ball event at Garden City. They will play thirty-six holes.

These four were to have met a few weeks ago, but partisans prevailed on the players to wait until all had had a chance to reach top form through practice. Travis is naturally at home at Garden City and is always hard to beat there or elsewhere. Herreshoff makes an effective partner. Travers is one of the best match golf players in the country, however, and Kirkby is a good man in a four-ball match. The contest promises fine golf.

LAUNDRY

THE BE

POULTRY, PIGEONS AND LIVE STOCK.

Leghorns

IN the Mediterranean varieties of fowls probably there are larger numbers bred embodying the different families of this variety than any others named in the Standard. Eggs being the main source of income from the poultry industry, and naturally attracts the attention of most people in the poultry business than any other one object in view, and all through the history of the hen's life of the Mediterranean varieties they being known as wonderful layers and non-sitters has naturally attracted the attention of an unusual large number of breeders all over the country.

The Mediterranean varieties are bred in many different colors. For instance the Leghorn family is composed of the Blacks, Whites, Browns, Buff, Blue, Dominecks, Silver and Golden Duck Wing, and as these various colors are composed and grown for certain admixtures of certain kinds of colors, naturally it gives any one an opportunity to select a color to suit their desire, and yet have in one good variety the same good qualities embodying these different colors suited to the taste of any one.

Among the ones that are more largely bred than any at present are the Whites. Next to these the Browns, which were at one time more largely bred than any of the other colors. The Buffs comes next, and then the Blacks, Duck Wings and Dominecks. But in all of these varieties there at present has sprung up a strong rivalry in the Blue Leghorn that promises a great future hereafter. Among our forefathers generations ago, many had a variety of their flock and you have often heard it said that the old blue hen or the old blue hen and chicks to such an extent that this was often a common word connected with poultry, and for this one cause alone the Blue Leghorns will find their way into popularity. Not this alone because as layers they certainly are making a record. Just what constitutes the making of this bird I do not know, but from many reports received recently those who have tried them certainly pronounce them great egg machines, and as in most of the large laying competitions one or more of the varieties of Leghorns they usually stand close up to the front.

They being a small active bird seem to suit surrounding conditions that exist in nearly all parts of the world, and as they can so easily convert most any kind of food into an abundance of eggs the Leghorn family have won their way into popularity and are holding their own with many of their strong rivals. However, there are many other varieties of fowls that I consider are capable of producing just as many eggs and are doing so, and have their admirers, but I don't suppose there will ever be a time come when any one family of fowls will be settled on as the best or any one particular color, but there are so many good ones to select from and suited to all kinds of conditions that it is no trouble for any one to get suited to their desire and even though they want eggs or meat they can find just what they wish by carefully looking over the different standard varieties. As a meat breed none of the Mediterranean varieties are considered the best, same as can be said of the best of dairy cows, but as egg producers the Mediterranean varieties which the poultry fanciers speak of the different colors of Leghorns are today popular and when eggs alone are sought they are usually looked upon as favorites by many.

Yours very truly,

Geo. P. Moore

QUESTIONS ASKED AND ANSWERED.

QUESTION.

Atlanta, Ga.

I would like to get some information from you concerning my chickens. Some of them have dysentery. I feed them scratch feed in straw so that they have to scratch for it. I give them plenty of water, and I fed them Lay or Bust dry mash. I hope that you can tell me what to do for them.

How old must a little chicken be before I can fed it the regular size scratch feed? How old must a little chicken be before I can grease its head to get the lice off? Ought the hen to be greased under the wings or not?

S. P. L.

ANSWER.

You do not state what age the chickens are that have dysentery, or exactly how you are feeding them. Chickens that are effected in this way it is usually caused from improper feeding, impure water and the method should be changed until the trouble is corrected. Little chickens should have only scratch feed for the first few days. Then Lay or Bust can be kept before them at all times dry, but still continue to feed the scratch feed.

When a hen is first removed from the nest a very small amount of pure lard should be put on the head of each little chick, and some under the wings of the hen. Do not get too much, as too much grease will scurvy kill the chickens and a person must use judgment in greasing them.

If you will give me the age of the chicks and exactly how they are fed I can probably give you more information.

Brookhaven Club Property Bid in at Court House Preparatory, It Is Believed, to Sale to Capital City Club—Bell Apartments Resold—Moise De Leon Property on Whitehall Sold, Other Sales Made at the Court House Tuesday

The Brookhaven estates on Tuesday formally bid in the Brookhaven club property which was offered at the courthouse. The price was $90,000, $55,000 of which represented the property and $2,000 the furnishings.

This proceeding is understood to be preparatory to the sale of the property to the Capital City club. A committee was appointed recently by the latter club to look into the question of the sale, the proposal being for the Capital City club to take the Brookhaven club as its country club.

Charles P. Glover, of the Charles P. Glover Realty Co., who is handling the sale, said Tuesday that the trade had not yet been closed, but that he was working on it, and might have some announcement to make shortly. He wouldn't say at what price the property had been offered to the Capital City club.

BELL APARTMENTS RESOLD.

Mr. Glover's agency has resold for the Corinthian Co to the Realty Mortgage Co. the Bell apartments at the southwest corner of Ponce De Leon avenue and the Boulevard. The price was $65,000.

This property consists of two stores and apartments in a two-story brick building on a lot 69x160.

COURT HOUSE SALES.

Chief real estate interest Tuesday centered around the court house, where several parcels were offered at public sale.

Much interest was shown in the sale of an equity in the property at Nos. 511-3 Whitehall street, the property of Moise De Leon, which was offered by Turman, Black & Calhoun as agents for the bankrupt court.

This property has a frontage of 52.33 on Whitehall street, a depth of about 250 feet through to Forsyth street, where there is a frontage of 107.5 feet.

The equity amounted to $5,000, and it was bought by Dr. W. J. Blalock for $1,500. He assumed $30,000 due on the property, and $1,365 of accrued interest, which made the total price to him $32,-865. This is at the rate of a little over $600 a front foot.

FORSYTH STREET SALE.

For the same owner, Turman, Black & Calhoun sold an equity in an equity held by Mr. De Leon in the northwest corner of Forsyth and Castleberry streets. The equity, which amounted to $2,500, was bought by Joseph Loewus for $1,550.

ANOTHER FORSYTH SALE.

Roff Sims offered for the estate of L. P. Thomas a lot on the west side of South Forsyth street between Brotherton and Barrett streets. It was bought by J. H. McCord for $265 a front foot.

The lot has a frontage of 53.7 and a depth of 203 feet to an alley. Mr. Sims also sold two renting parcels on Highlower street, near Humphries, to J. H. Ewing for $1,250.

OTHER PUBLIC SALES.

E. E. Pomeroy sold to a client of his firm 235 feet of frontage, belonging to the Holmes-Frederick estate, on Jabesham drive, 960 feet south of Pace's Ferry road, for $20 a front foot.

Steve R. Johnston sold for the Sarah Story estate a parcel on the McDonough road for $765.

SALES CONFIRMED.

Two important sales were also made at the court-house in confirmation of sales already made.

A. J. and H. F. West sold for Governor Brown to A. G. Rhodes and J. J. Haverty 35-7 Decatur street, the sale of which had been previously announced, for $270,000.

J. H. Ewing bought from the Logan-Inslno estate a parcel on the northeast side of Carnegie way, adjoining the state mansion property, for $54,000. This property has a frontage of 60 feet and a depth of 163 and 215 feet. This sale was announced some time ago.

LOT SALES.

A. J. and H. F. West sold at the court house the following lots of the Richards estate at Fourteenth, State and other streets:

Lot 1 to Thomas Francis for $1,075.
Lot 2 to Thomas Francis for $972.
Lot 3 to Mrs. Romie C. Abbott for $877.50.

PRO AND CON OF JAP QUESTION

Secretary Bryan's arrival at Sacramento, Cal. In the carriage with Governor Johnson. Bryan is drawing on his gloves.

Saving and Investing

The Solemn Objector.

BY JOHN M. OSKISON

What I am going to quote here is from a solemn editorial comment of a very upright and conscientious New York newspaper:

"The prevention of rash investment is desirable. There is a charming effect upon the entire United States of discouraging investments which are good in fact, but which do not seem good on their face?"

You and I should be inclined to nominate those investments which are good in fact, but which do not seem good on their face) for membership in the Mrs. Harris club. We might more pertinently ask about those investments which seem good on their face, but which in fact are not good. I assume that you and I are the owners of money, in some amount, and that we want to invest it safely. I quote further:

"Within a few days, ex-Speaker Cannon has related how he declined an interest in such an absurdly attractive affair and chances are those two sentences from an honest newspaper arguing against a proposal to pass a law to protect investors with the investors themselves. All the paper wanted to say was: "The idea comes from Kansas; it must be bad."

It would seem unfortunate if investors generally went on the theory that Mr. Cannon was mistaken when he refused the privilege of buying stock in the early days of that enterprise. If they will look up "Uncle Joe's" present rating many will probably conclude that he has had very good success in making investments, notwithstanding his refusal to buy telephone stock in the early days.

You and I, as investors, may very well leave to the speculators, who can afford the chances, the business of picking the one winner out of the thousand enterprises which, untried, ask for financial help.

Bergson Sums Up America

(New York Sun.)

Paris—Prof. Bergson's speech at the recent dinner of the Comite France-Amerique at Doyen's in the Champs Elysees as a charming synthesis of the impressions of the United States which he brought back with him after his visit there.

M. Bergson at the beginning of his address spoke almost enthusiastically of the climate of New York, against which he had been dolefully warned.

"About the supposed crudities of American life and the lack of artistic perception," he said, "I had certainly been misinformed. I must say that I found New York interesting to a fascinating degree and in certain respects beautiful.

"I say to you now, much as it may surprise some of you, that skyscrapers may be agreeable to look at, and that many of them are beautiful.

"It has always seemed to me that the fundamental element of the American spirit is idealistic, and I come back more firmly fixed in that view than before. I am essentially and fundamentally idealistic. They are always full of sentiment, whether they confess it or not. They have a remarkable curiosity as to everything which concerns the workings of the intellect—les choses de l'esprit; and above all they consider that life must be lived in order to realize something that is as yet far beyond anything that has ever been realized."

Where Colleges Fail

(Raymond Reordon, in the Craftsman.)

Any effort to benefit the nation must be made through the child. To enlarge further the scope of agricultural teaching in the high schools or the universities will gain but little for the people. Such effort will but develop the latent talent of toe few, who will soon begin to exploit their knowledge for personal ends.

Knowledge acquired after sixteen lacks the element of unselfishness. Such knowledge tends toward self-centering ends. It is a waste to give more to institutions for higher learning, for they have already proved themselves inadequate in developing a conscious citizenship.

The college graduate is not always a desirable attachment to a working community. Expert knowledge we must have; but the expert alone has not learned through doing, lacks balance, the soul ballast that streams of sweat and corded muscles give to the man who equalizes life through the development of both the mental and physical self, a life rounded by experience and contact with actualities.

A Friendly Campfire

(David Grayson, in the American Magazine.)

Did you ever sit by a campfire and watch the flames dance and the sparks fly upward into the cool, dark air? Did you ever see the fitful light among the tree depths, at one moment opening vast shadowy vistas into the forest, at the next dying downward and leaving it all in somber mystery? And what a friendly and companionable thing a campfire is! It plays for you when you wish to be lively, and it glows for you when you wish to be reflective.

FIRST PHOTOGRAPH OF ANARCHIST WHO TRIED TO KILL KING ALFONSO

RAFAEL SANCHEZ ALLEGRO.

Who tried to kill King Alfonso the other day, made the eighth attempt on the young Spanish monarch. He openly avows he is an anarchist, and that his purpose was to free the country from the rule of a king.

The man is said to show considerable intelligence, though he is not educated.

Vice President Marshall's Bible

(Christian Herald.)

The vice president came in and chatted most pleasantly. An Oxford Bible was lying on the table and under the rubber band encircling it was lettered the vice president's name. This was spoken of to him and he answered:

"Oh, yes; I'm very proud of that Bible. My Sunday school class of young men gave it to me just before we left Indianapolis."

Mrs. Marshall had gone into the other room, and she called out laughingly, "But he'll not tell you how opportunely the Bible came to him, I know."

"Yes, I will," called back the vice president, with an answering laugh. "And I'll leave it to you," turning to the representative, "if the joke is not on Mrs. Marshall rather than on me. We were packing rather hastily for our western trip some weeks ago," he resumed, "we packed several boxes for storage, and after they were made up and gone I found that Mrs. Marshall had packed away my Bible with the other books.

"And, do you know," said Mrs. Marshall, returning to the sitting room, "that he thinks he can't read this Bible, although it's a lot nicer than his old one?"

"That's true," said the vice president; "it's a fine Bible and I'm very proud of it, but I had used my old Bible for more than twenty years, and some way I always seemed able to turn to whatever I wanted in it. It will take time to become accustomed to this one."

ENCOURAGING OUTLOOK IN THE FLOOD DISTRICT

Mississippi River Registers a Fall at New Orleans—Shows Little Change Elsewhere

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, May 6.—With the exception of a three-tenths of a foot drop at New Orleans, today's stages along the Mississippi river south of Vicksburg showed little change over those for the previous twenty-four-hour period.

At Red river landing, where the Gibson's Landing crevasse waters are slowly returning back to the big stream through Red river, a rise of only one-tenth of a foot was registered; Baton Rouge recorded an increase of two-thirds of a foot and Donaldsonville showed a rise of one-tenth. Vicksburg and Natchez showed receding stages.

Reports to the government engineers here from all points in the lower valley this morning were favorable. Assuring reports come from Bayou Sara regarding the big Irvine dike where some alarm was caused yesterday by the appearance of sand boils.

A break at that place would overflow the parishes of Pointe Coupe, Aberville, West Baton Rouge and parts of other parishes that were covered last year by the Torras crevasse water.

Fair weather is predicted for the west gulf states tonight and Wednesday, preceded by showers over the lower valley tonight.

He told the house that fifty-one years ago "one of the ablest men in house life first saw the light of day," and congratulated the "Democratic party and the American people that during the fifty-one years of his life there has grown to greatness and bigness the able gentleman from Alabama, Mr. Underwood."

Amid a roar of applause from both sides of the chamber, Mr. Underwood thanked Mr. Mann for his congratulations.

In a short time consideration of the remaining paragraph of the free list was completed and the income tax section of the bill was reached.

The tragedy occurred at Jones Brothers' grocery store, on Broadway, in an upstairs room. The revolver was placed so close to her heart when the shot was fired until it set fire to her clothing, which were burned off from her waist line up before the flames could be extinguished.

She is said to have been despondent over a continued illness and had spoken several times of killing herself. Her mother, Gertrude Langston, operates a questionable house, where the girl lived. The coroner's jury found upon investigating the case that she ended her own life because of a continued illness. She was eighteen years old.
